

111 ROKs Returned On Litters

Americans, Britons
In Sound Condition;
100 South Koreans
Badly Emaciated

PANMUNJOM, Sunday, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Communists shuttled truckloads of prison-weary captives back home to the Allied side today. The Americans and Britons among them were in apparent sound condition and good spirits, but a staggering number of the South Koreans were emaciated, pain-wracked litter cases.

The fifth day of the big post-armistice prisoner of war exchange began promptly at 9 a. m. (P. M. Sedalia time, Saturday) in the hot and dusty roadside center of Panmunjom where the truce was negotiated.

The exchange today brought back 112 Americans, 21 Britons, 13 Turks, 2 Australians, 1 Canadian, 1 Filipino and 250 South Koreans. In the first group were 100 South Korean litter cases, transported down from the Communist northland in 11 Russian-built Molotov ambulances.

Tender hands lifted the South Koreans from the ambulances and carried them inside the Allied reception and hospital tents.

The first South Korean litter patient wore a clumsy cast on his right leg. The second looked like a skeleton. His right leg was no bigger than a woman's wrist.

Others had lost their hands or parts or all of their feet. Apparently they were victims of frostbite.

An Allied attendant handed one South Korean a cigarette. It dropped from his lips onto the gravel driveway.

The South Koreans were dazed, some barely able to raise their heads. Few smiled.

American Marines were grim and unsmiling too as they carried the litterers into the reception center. The Chinese drivers looked on stoically.

For the first time since the exchange began, there were no Chinese photographers on hand to record the scene. It was not the kind that made good propaganda.

Allied personnel rushed the South Koreans to helicopters for a swift ride to Munsan where expert hospital care awaited them.

As the Allied repatriates moved south, Communist prisoners were going north through the Red reception center. The latter group included 473 North Korean women and 1 Chinese woman-nurses, wives and camp followers.

And there were 23 Korean children under the age of 5. Some were born in prison camp.

As the women and children passed through the American zone in a double convoy of ambulances, they shouted "Mansel"—10,000 years—and waved Communist flags. Many of the children were crying.

The machinery of prisoner exchange was functioning smoothly, but there were background signs of coming dispute.

Returning Americans have told of some fellow prisoners being sent to jail by the Reds for what the Communists termed "instigating against peace."

Others said the Reds were holding back four Allied soldiers who once had been guards at the Kojie Island prison camp, where Red POW dikeards have rioted and been controlled by force.

Additional $4,663,000 For Sedalia Air Base

President Eisenhower Signs Big Fund
Bill Bringing To $26,500,000 Total
Appropriations For Local Installation

The $491,595,930 appropriation bill signed by President Eisenhower, authorizing the construction of Army, Navy and Air Force projects, includes $4,663,000 for the Sedalia Air Force Base. This money is in addition to the nearly $21,500,000 which was authorized and from which construction is now being done at the base.

The bill signed by the President authorizes $138,671,000 for the Army; $87,011,130 for the Navy; $269,509,000 for the Air Force and $1,404,800 for Alaskan communities. The total is $2.1 billion dollars less than the original request by the services.

In this area the Air Force has included Grandview Air Force Base for $314,000 for an additional headquarters building for the Central Air Defense Force, a theatre, post exchange and ordinance storage for fighter planes.

Col. Franklin K. Reyher, commanding officer at SAFB, said the money appropriated is for additional airfield pavement, apron parking, navigation aids housing, ready room, base operations building and control tower.

Col. Reyher explained this additional appropriation, along with the nearly $21,500,000 and other Air Force funds used, would represent an expenditure at the SAFB of more than $26,500,000.

In discussing the SAFB project as of now, Col. Reyher explained, the next big bid to be made and charged against the previous budget is the hospital building. This, he said, he understood would be announced on Sept. 1.

Maj. J. W. Burlingame, the installation officer at the Sedalia Air Force Base, was reached for a short commentary on the significance of the 1954 appropriation. He first stated that he was unable to give a breakdown on what the $4,663,000 would be used for, other than the various categories listed above. He explained that this information is classified and can not be released until bidding on the projects is completed.

The projects listed in the above article are: airfield pavements, navigational aids, airfield lighting, operational training facilities and land. These are the categories for which the appropriation is going. In commenting on the overall significance of this appropriation Major Burlingame said that this money should enable the base to become an "operational" station.

U. S. Advises Reds To Give Up All POWs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The United States served notice today that it expects Red China and North Korea to give up every prisoner of war now in their hands.

Gen. Mark Clark, supreme Allied commander in the Far East, has said he thinks the Reds have agreed to return under the truce terms, and "thousands upon thousands" more South Koreans.

There have also been reports from Korea that some American POWs have been sentenced to jail terms by the Reds in recent weeks for "instigating against the peace."

Expressing grave concern about the situation, the State Department issued a statement saying "progress of the prisoner exchange is being watched very closely and appropriate action will be taken just as soon as definite facts are established." The statement was signed by acting Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith.

Taking a slap at Soviet Russia, the statement declared:

"It has long been believed on good authority that the Soviet Union still holds an unknown number of World War II prisoners of different nationalities and it was with this in mind that we insisted on a clause in the armistice agreement which provided that any United Nations personnel who are said not to desire repatriation must nevertheless be transferred to the custody of the repatriation commission where our officers will have access to them. This would include any prisoners alleged to have been given jail sentences. None are exempt."

From those already liberated, U. N. officers have learned that there are some Americans who have decided not to return because they fear reprisals from fellow captives. These men were described as informers for the Reds.

State Department officials said the "appropriate action" mentioned in Smith's statement means first of all a complaint that the armistice is being violated. Procedure for making such complaints is provided in the truce agreement.

Smith emphasized that nothing would be done to jeopardize the safety of prisoners still in Communist hands.

Furthermore, by integrating this new money with the 1952 allotment the base should be able to complete the major portion of its construction program. Major Burlingame felt that the appropriation was a good one and is happy with it.

When asked about the future of the base he replied that the papers have indicated it may be used as a B-47-bomber training center, but that it probably would not be used as a training center and would become a regular operational station for B-47's.

One Killed, Three Injured In Accident

Charles Wallace
Killed In Highway
52 Wreck Saturday

One man was killed and three other persons were injured about 9 p. m. Saturday in a head-on collision of two automobiles on Highway 52 between Cole Camp and the junction of Highway 65-52.

Dead is Charles Leroy Wallace, 64, 2642 Brighton, Kansas City, Mo. He was killed instantly when thrown against the windshield of the automobile in which he was riding.

Injured were: Mrs. Mary Alberta Oliver, 40, of the Hilltop Motel, Gravois Mills, driver of a 1952 Cadillac sedan. She suffered six fractured ribs on the right side, lacerated scalp, contusion on the right forehead, a cerebral concussion, and bruises.

Joseph Collins, 30, 1019 West 10th, driver of a 1951 Chevrolet sedan. Collins suffered a broken right collar bone, and a multiple fracture of the upper part of the right leg. Compound fracture of the nose, and bruises.

Melvin F. Collins, 35, 914 East Sixth, who was riding with his brother suffered a scalp laceration and contusion of the face. He also had some bruises.

The injured were brought to the Bothwell Hospital in the Rens ambulance where they were treated by Dr. D. R. Edwards. X-ray pictures were taken which revealed the fractures.

Wallace, a cousin of the Collins brothers, was riding in the front seat of the Chevrolet sedan. It was reported that he was thrown against the windshield shattering it, and then rolled out the door on the right side of the car to the pavement. He was reported to have died instantly.

Wallace's body was taken to the Eickhoff Funeral Home in Cole Camp.

Collins told Sgt. Ernest W. Van Winkle of the State Highway Patrol that he was headed west on Highway 52 returning to Sedalia from Camdenton where they had been during the early part of the evening. He said the other car apparently started to pull out to go around a car and they crashed head on.

Mrs. Oliver, wife of L. C. Oliver, reported she was returning to her home at Gravois Mills, from Harrisonville, Mo., and was headed west on the highway. She said she could not remember what had happened. She was dazed when the collision occurred.

The front end of both automobiles were badly smashed. The cars were towed to the Chevrolet garage in Cole Camp.

U. S. Population To Reach 160 Million

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The population of the United States will reach the 160 million mark about 9 a. m. Monday (Sedalia time) according to Census Bureau reckoning.

That would represent a jump of nearly nine million since the official census was taken a little over three years ago. The U. S. population as of April 1, 1950 stood at 151,132,000.

Former Sedalian Is First Blind Telephone Operator

By Hazel Lang

Natalie Frances Miller, granddaughter of Mrs. Alice Blackman White, 217 East Fifth, is the first blind telephone operator ever to be employed on the Bell system.

Natalie lived in Sedalia as a little girl and later moved to Evanston, Ill. She has learned to live in the dark. It is true, but she has learned to live. Making the most out of the talents God gave her, there has burned within her heart a light that glows, she does not notice the dark because she is constantly looking for the brightness, the brightness of friendships, of doing the things she can do. Now she has found a way of making her own light.

A talented musician and singer, she is a graduate of Bethany College in Lindsborg, Kan. Several of the spirit of Natalie is revealed in a recent letter to her grandmother:

U. S. Says No On UN Trustee

Dulles Takes Action
When He Announced
The Return Of One
Island To Japan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (P)—The United States today closed the door on any United Nations trusteeship over the American base of Okinawa or other islands in the strategic Ryukyu and Bonin chains south of Japan.

The action, marking a shift in United States policy, was taken by Secretary of State Dulles in a statement at Tokyo announcing the return to Japan of one group of islands in the Ryukyu system. Dulles' statement was released simultaneously in Washington.

The Ryukyus and Bonins were taken from Japan as far as administrative control goes by Article 3 of the Japanese Peace Treaty. This pact, formally ending World War II in the Pacific, was signed at San Francisco in September, 1951.

The treaty committed Japan to "concur in any proposal of the United States to the United Nations to place the island groups under its trusteeship system with the United States as the sole administering authority."

The treaty also stated that "pending the making of such a proposal" and its approval by the United Nations, the United States would have the right to rule the islands. Until today the understanding had been that eventually some kind of United Nations trusteeship system would be set up, probably paralleling the trusteeship arrangements already made for the old League of Nations mandated islands which Japan lost in the last war.

Now, however, Dulles has declared that with respect to the Ryukyus and Bonins—except for the Amami group being returned to Japan—"it will be necessary during the present international tension in the Far East for the United States to maintain the degree of control and authority now exercised."

Dulles Leaves Asia
Saturday For Home

TOKYO, Sunday, Aug. 9 (P)—U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles leaves today for Washington after making two strategic moves to strengthen the free world's position in the Far East.

In South Korea yesterday he initiated with Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai a mutual security pact. President Syngman Rhee looked on.

It pledges U. S. troops will fight again in Korea if the Reds violate the armistice and strike south. The agreement also provides that both countries will walk out of the Korean political conference after 90 days if the Communists do not get down to brass tacks in discussions on a Korean truce.

In Tokyo last night Dulles revealed the United States' desire to relinquish the Amami Oshima group of islands near Okinawa, major U. S. base in the Pacific. The islands were taken from Japan after World War II.

Observers viewed the move as an attempt to embarrass Russia, which is trying to woo this country into signing a peasy treaty. The 220,000 inhabitants of Amami Oshima have clamored for return to Japanese jurisdiction.

Things Are Looking
Up In Drought Area

FORT WORTH, Aug. 8 (P)—Things are looking up in the Texas and Oklahoma drought areas, the Southwest's soil conservation chief said today.

Two-thirds of the great drought area still is bone dry. But Louis P. Merrill, regional director of the Soil Conservation Service, said 43 counties in West Texas and 10 in Oklahoma show "greatly improving" soil moisture because of rains the past month.

He reported adequate soil moisture and cover in all of Louisiana, 30 counties of Arkansas, 75 counties of East Texas and the eastern half of Oklahoma.

President And Mrs. Eisenhower Arrive In Denver For Visit

Ike Tells Cheering Denver Crowd That He Is Delighted To Be Back; The Trip Is To Visit Mrs. Eisenhower's Mother

DENVER, Aug. 8 (P)—President Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower arrived here late today for a Colorado vacation and told a cheering crowd he was "delighted to be back."

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower arrived at Lowry Air Force Base after a seven-hour flight aboard the presidential plane Columbine from Washington.

It was their first visit to the Colorado capital since Eisenhower was elected president.

Denver is the home of Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, and the President was driven to her residence a few minutes after he and the First Lady stepped from the plane.

Eisenhower will have office headquarters here at Lowry base and plans to leave the city for some fishing after spending most of next week cleaning up official business.

Among other things, the President is expected to sign several score bills which came to his White House desk with the adjournment of Congress early this week.

At the air base, the President first inspected an honor guard after standing at attention with his hat over his head while the band played ruffles and flourishes and the "Star Spangled Banner."

Eisenhower was clad in a light tan summer weight suit. The First Lady wore a light grey suit and a small black hat.

"We are delighted to be back," the President declared.

He added that he hoped his visit would last several weeks and then expressed appreciation of the welcome he and Mrs. Eisenhower received.

He said he was particularly grateful for "the splendid honor guard."

Riding an open car, the President got a warm ovation from the servicemen and women and their families as he drove through the base streets.

On the six-mile drive to the home of Mrs. Doud there were large crowds all along the route. The President stood most of the way, arms outstretched above his head. He smiled broadly as cries of "Hi, Ike!" and "welcome back!" rang out.

As his caravan approached Mrs. Doud's home, the crowd became more dense. He and the First Lady received a rousing ovation as the car drew up before the modest gray brick home.

The President paused briefly in front of the house to chat with Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado and Acting Denver Mayor Thomas P. Campbell.

Eisenhower plans to get in a few rounds of golf at Denver's Cherry Hills Country Club before leaving for the mountains, probably late next week, to do some trout fishing.

He reportedly plans to visit the ranch of Aksel Nielson, an old friend, near Fraser, about 70 miles from Denver on the western slope of the Continental Divide.

Crash Victim Still Wants To Fly Again

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 8 (P)—Sgt. Roy Speer—one of four survivors of the crash of a big U. S. bomber in the North Atlantic—arrived here tonight weak and battered but determined to fly again.

He managed a wansmile when lowered from the ship by the Manchester Skipper—which rescued him from the icy waters 600 miles west of the Irish coast on Wednesday, the day of the crash.

Speer, of Bennington, Okla., was not permitted to talk to reporters, but he did make a statement to Air Force officials, in which he said:

"I want to fly again. I should like to fly back to America as soon as I am fit."

The other three survivors were picked up by a ship now enroute to Canada.

The ship that brought Speer to England, also carried the bodies of two crew members of the 10-engine RB-36 bomber which had a crew of 23. Three other bodies have been recovered by other ships.

Malekov Claims Russians Have Mastered the H-Bomb

But They May Have Mastered It—
Americans Doubt Russians
Have Really Made An H-Bomb

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (P)—Russia may have mastered the secret of the hydrogen bomb, as Premier Malekov claimed today, but American experts doubt that the Soviet Union actually has produced one of those terrible weapons.

These U. S. officials who probably are as well informed on Soviet atomic progress as anyone outside Russia, expressed their doubts after studying Malekov's speech to his Red parliament.

Diplomatic authorities who make it a practice to keep track of the twists and turns of Kremlin foreign policy also came up with this conclusion: That Malekov's talk, including his H-bomb boast, was deliberately tough, contrasting sharply with the peaceful gestures with which Russia has been trying to impress the world since the death of Stalin five months ago.

After declaring that the United States "have no monopoly in the production of the H-bomb," Malekov accused this country of having practiced atomic blackmail. He also assailed the Atlantic treaty system as the main danger to world peace and warned the West not to read Russian weakness into the purge of Lavrenty Beria, the former Soviet secret police chief and onetime close associate of Malekov.

There was some speculation that Malekov may be feeling more secure internally, and that with Beria out of the way and the follow-up purge presumably going well, he now considers himself in a position to take stronger foreign policy line. Against this, authorities balance the fact that an armistice, for whatever reasons, has been achieved in the Korean War.

Malekov's hydrogen bomb boast drew no reaction from the White House, which President Eisenhower left today for a Colorado vacation.

It produced no air of crisis. One school of thought in Washington was represented in a statement by Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, who said:

"We have never assumed that it was beyond the capabilities of the Russians to produce such a weapon, and that is the reason why, more than three years ago, it was decided to press forward with this development for ourselves."

Scientist Would Have
Ike Call Special
Session On Defense

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (P)—An atomic scientist said today that if Russia has the hydrogen bomb, President Eisenhower "would be justified in recalling Congress to consider air defense of a totally unprecedented nature."

The scientist, Dr. Ralph Lapp, said it would "not be too surprising" that the Russians had at least tested a "small scale" H-bomb.

Lapp, who was associated with the original Manhattan project that produced the first atomic bomb and served later as a consultant to the Defense Department, said he is not now associated with the atomic project but is a close observer of national and international atomic affairs.

"The United States scientists were 2½ years off in their calculation about when Russia would produce an A-bomb," he said, adding:

"Therefore it would not be too surprising if Russia may now have at least conducted small scale tests to verify the principles of the H-bomb."

He reportedly plans to visit the ranch of Aksel Nielson, an old friend, near Fraser, about 70 miles from Denver on the western slope of the Continental Divide.

In the picture they are shown at work at what is known as a "cordless B" board. The article says it would seem that special equipment would have been necessary to enable them to operate the board, but this was not the case.

To the layman's eye, the switchboard looks like an adding machine with ten numbered keys. When a four digit number comes over the "B" operator's headset, she connects the call by depressing the corresponding keys.

The calls completed by "B" operators are manual calls coming into the communities served by Evanston and are passed to the special board by other operators.

The two blind girls learned their work through the use of a card-board stencil that was fitted over the keyboard and was Brailled especially for them by a representative of the Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind. Now that they have become familiar with the board they no longer use stencil.

The headsets worn by the operators are also Brailled so that they can easily identify them.

Notes from Public Library--

Books Can Help New Parents Find a Name for Offspring

At least two of the 128 parents of the 64 babies born last month at Bothwell Hospital must have had a little trouble finding a name for their baby. In similar difficulties, parents and prospective parents are urged to consult "Your Baby's Name," a new book by Maxwell Nurberg and Morris Rosenblum.

It is a complete manual covering the meaning of names; origins of names; and unusual names. In addition to the name and its meaning, entries include names of celebrities, past and present, who made the name famous in history, science, literature, music, art, sports or the entertainment world.

A Calendar of Saints' names, based on official sources, which can be found in no other general book on names, is another feature. A section on anecdotes about how famous people like Tallulah Bankhead, Ilka Chase, Jinx Falkenburg, Dwight Eisenhower and Estes Kefauver got their names is amusing and interesting.

The origin of surnames receives full consideration in a book by William D. Bowman called "The Story of Surnames." Pointing out that surnames fall into four main classes, one of which is names that derived from occupations, the author explains the preeminence of the name "Smith" by the fact that the trade of the smith was one of utmost importance, practiced everywhere, in primitive times.

Other classifications are names taken from places of origin, names derived from a father or ancestor, as in Wilson, the son of Will, or Johnson, the son of John; and names taken from nicknames or terms descriptive of personal attributes. Further information on the source of common surnames will be found in "British Family Names" by Henry Barber.

Louis Adamic discusses the pros and cons of name-changing in "What's Your Name?" When his own Slovenian name became Americanized by accident, Adamic was at first distressed, then resigned and finally relieved, being rather tired of it being misspelled and mispronounced in this country.

TAKING A BREATH FROM HER STUDIES—Mary Sue Kiesling of Tipton, left above, is shown as she looks up from one of the pieces of literature that is included in her "prospective nurse" course at Bothwell Hospital. Miss Ruby James of the hospital set up the course, and it is under her supervision that it functions.

Patients Get Good Care, Girls Get Nurse Training at Bothwell

The nursing staff at Bothwell Hospital has always had its way of ironing out problems, but it seems that they now have a unique way of solving the crisis when it becomes vacation time for the regular nurses at the hospital.

Instead of going on short handed, Miss Ruby James, who is head nurse at the hospital, has composed a plan whereby a select group of girls from the surrounding Sedalia territory, and four from Sedalia itself, are able to assist in the nursing duties, and also learn a portion of the nursing profession.

Miss James has termed these girls her "prospective student nurses." They range in age from 16 to 18 years, and they all have a nursing profession in the backs of their minds, while some of them are making it a reality this year.

Phyllis Combs, Stover, Dorothy Lane, Knob Noster, Sonja Ashmead, Pilot Grove, Linda Buskirk, Sedalia, and Audrey Combs, Sedalia, are all entering nursing school this fall. They feel that the experience they have gained from Bothwell Hospital through their student employment has been most valuable in helping them to determine definitely whether they will go on with nursing as a profession.

Together, these girls form a pretty compact group, and they are all the best of friends. The girls from out of town are brought to work each morning by their parents or a friend who works in Sedalia. However, four of them are now sleeping in the nurses' home at the hospital with the regular nurses. On their days off, of course, they go to their homes.

The working conditions are ideal for the girls. If there is a serious need for them to work after seven in the evening, and they are willing to do so, Miss James always calls their parents to check and make sure that they may do this. As she says, "We don't ask the girls to work past seven. When we need them, and they want to work, we always get the parents' permission." After regular hours they have dates, go to the show, or many things such as this. As one person put it, "There's not a bad looking one in the group."

The girls began their course in early June. For the first week they received instruction from Miss James on the profession, and went to regular classes. After their preliminary study, they began work by doing the small odd jobs around the hospital. Now they get to help in the nursery, assist crutches, change clothes and many tasks of this sort. However, Miss James points out, they may not administer medication until they are registered nurses.

When the course ends Aug. 15, the girls will take a three week vacation. Then the colleagues will go on to nursing school, and the following will return to their high school study: Joyce Snow, Sedalia, Mary Sue Kiesling, Tipton, Esther Kaiser, Cole Camp, Adeline Gamber, Sedalia, Marilyn Schmitt, Tipton, and Catherine Gerike, Cole Camp.

The patients at the hospital have "fallen in love" with the girls. Their captivating smiles, pleasing personalities, and general good work have the whole hospital talking. The staff of the hospital is equally thrilled, and they feel that they really have the "cream of the crop" in these girls.

All told, it is a wonderful plan, and all concerned are benefitting from it. The girls are trying to outdo themselves these days, in an attempt to reach their goal—that of a registered nurse.

Trout From Heaven

MILES CITY, Mont. (AP) — It finally rained fish.

More than 25,000 fingerling brook trout were released from an airplane by the Montana Fish and Game Department into reservoirs in four Southeast Montana Counties.

Deputy Game Warden Jack Nicolay says they will be large year.

HEAD WOMAN—Miss Ruby James, top above, head nurse at Bothwell Hospital and instigator of the student prospective nursing plan, is shown talking on the telephone, and giving some of her expert advice. The idea of this plan was original with her, and she feels that it not only helps the young girls, but that it also helps the hospital.

ALL SMILES (below) as these girls emerge from a patient's room carrying empty food trays, they display the smiles that tend to make them so popular around Bothwell Hospital. They are: Sonja Ashmead of Pilot Grove, and Catherine Gerike of Cole Camp.

Achievement Day Exhibit Shows Excellence Of Pettis 4-H'ers In Their Project Work

A varied and excellent display of the work of the rural young people in Pettis County was shown Thursday and Friday at the Smith-Cotton cafeteria for the 4-H Achievement Day exhibition.

In and out of the building went the proud owners of those things on exhibit and they should have been proud. Girls of grandmother's day could not have turned out finer loaves of bread than those in the baking department of the 4-H. There were delicious looking cakes, too, with tempting frostings in pink, white and chocolate. There were candies and cookies, cinnamon rolls and nut bread, just all kinds of things to make you hungry.

There was a canning section, too, with jars of all kinds of vegetables and fruits. A woman has no greater asset than being a good cook—and what cooks the youngsters will make!

From the 4-H gardens were beans, potatoes, fine firm tomatoes, carrots, onions and many other things—it didn't look like the young 4-H members even had heard about the drought.

When it comes to sewing, the girls know how to do that, too. Dresses from a beautiful yellow formal to sport clothes hung on a long rack that went almost across one side of the big room. Every type of dress and every color, made of a variety of materials, could be seen, and they were in all sizes. A portion of the rack also held slips that the girls had made.

There were luncheon sets of prints and of feed sacks; there were pillow cases, many of them lovely embroidery work, aprons, skirts of bright colors, organdy curtains, cloopin bathes, shoe bags, little white collars, a white bolero with matching bag, almost anything that any little seamstress could think of to make.

There were pictures embroidered, needlepoint, painted, some made combining magazine pictures with different kinds of cloth materials, and they were very clever and pretty.

Two little dressing tables made from orange crates were especially attractive. One had a top of varnished wood and a skirt of purple and white print with a deep band around the top and a double ruffle of plain purple around the bottom. A matching stove was made from a small keg.

The other had a glass top and a white organdy skirt. Around the top was a band of flowered print with a black background. The matching stove was an old fashioned square piano stool painted white and covered with the same flowered print material, edged with an organdy ruffle.

But the girls did not have all the fine displays. The boys had very nice pieces of furniture that their mothers are probably mighty glad to have in their homes. There were handsome end tables, lamps, bookends, and dozens of other things, and then there were miniature boats and airplanes.

There were cards with a display of different kinds of knots, fishing knots, square knots, overhand knots, bowling knots and others. There were rocks, pieces of tree limbs that were made into candle holders, and then there were the dish gardens.

The dish gardens held sand with cacti or other plants stuck in them and other things that were put there to carry out the ideas of the young dish gardeners.

Among them was one that said "Mars" On it was a flying saucer, a tiny man from mars, some tiny Christmas tree balls and other things. Three women stood there looking at it. They were trying to figure out what this and that was meant for and then finally one said—"I guess this must be a space ship"—she hesitated, "I wouldn't know—I'm not so much up on those things."

The youngsters had taken all kinds of things—buckets, cans and boxes—painted them, some very artistically with flower designs, for waste baskets.

There were rugs, needlepoint, braided and other kinds, flower arrangements, dolls out of corn husks, foot stools made with bright prints, pin cushions and pillows.

Everything was arranged attractively on long tables and many people were looking over the articles, talking about them and admiring them. It was a display well worth seeing with many good ideas on how to make very useful, pretty things at very little cost.

Harold and Alfred will return to the Missouri School for the Deaf on Sept. 13.

John, who is employed at the Grand Cleaners, also plans to stay in Sedalia, and George's plans are still indefinite. George, who was injured in an automobile accident a few months ago, hopes to return to Drury College, Springfield, if his condition permits.

Mr. and Mrs. Deuel both grew up in Sedalia and are sorry to have to leave their home town. Mrs. Deuel is the former Daisy Cunningham.

Donnie Keifer, Clinton, spent last week visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Wiggins, at their farm home northeast of town.

Park Board Sees Vandalism Result In Park System

Members of the Park Board visited the park system Friday night, investigating reported willful destruction of new playground equipment. They found broken teeter boards, broken window lights, evidence of rough use of all equipment and destruction of a door to one of the sanitary toilets.

The board members want everyone to use the park facilities in a reasonable manner, but they will not tolerate outright destruction. They also learned that considerable profanity is being used by groups of teenagers while attending different functions, showing poor sportsmanship in play.

The board advises they will be very happy to have anyone report to them or the chief of police names of those found doing such destruction or using profane language.

Board members making the tour were Harry Walsh, John Vandekamp, A. W. Haller, Bill Bunn and Frank Mehl.

Control Needs Will Be Set In Coming Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The coming week may show how far the Eisenhower administration will have to go next year in applying crop controls it has pledged to hold to a minimum.

On Monday the Agriculture Department will release the first official estimate of the size of this year's cotton crop. Should it exceed 12 million bales, controls on the 1954 crop would appear unavoidable.

Another report, to be issued Tuesday, will give the latest forecast of the corn crop. Should it exceed 3,400,000,000 bushels, controls would be considered for the crop next year. A forecast last month put corn at 3,336,000,000 bushels.

On Friday growers will vote in a nationwide referendum on rigid marketing quotas for next year's wheat crop. Proclaimed recently by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, the quotas must be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting before they become effective.

Both the GOP platform and President Eisenhower are in favor of a minimum of controls on farmers.

The action in involving controls on wheat, plus prospects of similar measures for cotton and corn, were made necessary by the accumulation of large supplies from recent crops and the requirements of farm laws. These laws make it mandatory to impose controls when supplies reach a level defined by the law as "surplus."

Controls in effect this year on most types of tobacco and peanuts will carry over on next year's crop. In addition, Benson has announced plans to restrict production of sugar cane in this country and in Puerto Rico next year.

Friday's wheat referendum has important political and economic implications. First, it should give an idea about how farmers feel toward the politically controversial controls. Second, it will have a big effect on next year's wheat prices, and hence on income of many farmers.

Should the controls be rejected, price supports would have to be reduced from this year's national level of $2.21 to about $1.25 a bushel. Such a drop could cost wheat growers upwards of a billion dollars, depending, of course, on the size of the crop and the way market prices acted. Approval of quotas would keep supports at this year's level.

A big drop in wheat prices might be a blow to some Republican members seeking re-election in next year's balloting.

Benson has said in statements and speeches that the GOP administration finds itself in the position of having to invoke controls because of "failure" of the Truman administration to take steps earlier to restrict crop output.

In an NBC radio talk today Benson said no attempt is being made to influence farmers' votes on the wheat quotas. He said the department has merely explained what is involved in the referendum and "the decision is now up to the farmers."

The secretary will not be required to make an immediate decision on cotton and corn controls. The law gives him until Oct. 15 to decide about cotton and until Nov. 15 on corn. It would be possible for the crop outlook to change enough in the meantime to avoid the rigid, penalty-invoking marketing quotas.

U. S. Ships Taking Supplies To Korea Will Leave Soon

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The first ships carrying new American supplies to remake war-shattered Korea into a "show window" of the free world will leave next week.

Four vessels are due to sail Tuesday with cargoes of cotton, barley and rice.

The four vessels will be the vanguard of hundreds which will carry food, raw materials and equipment in the drive to relieve and reconstruct South Korea in the wake of the rice.

In announcing the first shipments, Foreign Aid Director Harold Stassen said today they are "symbolic of the determination of free men to be as vigorous in peace as they are valiant in war in defense of freedom."

Moving quickly to put the reconstruction program into gear, the first cargo, 4,100 tons of barley, was loaded aboard the vessel P. and T. Trader in San Francisco even before President Eisenhower signed congressional legislation Friday authorizing 200 million dollars to start the reconstruction task.

To follow this up, 8,000 tons of rice will leave the San Francisco Bay area Tuesday aboard the New Rochelle Victory along with 4,500 tons of barley aboard a second vessel, the Beaver State.

About the same time, 10,000 bales of cotton will be hoisted aboard the Stella Lykes in the Galveston-Houston area to begin the movement of supplies from the Gulf ports. This shipment is part of 18,000 bales urgently requested by the South Korean government to meet a critical shortage threatening unemployment in the milling industry.

Sedalia Scouts and Leader Have Returned From California Where They Camped With 50.00 Boys From 25 Nations of World

Two Eagle Scouts from Sedalia, and storage refrigerators. One of Don Hofheins and Larry Owen, along with their scoutmaster, Charles Hofheins, had a "bang-up" time at the National Boy Scout Jamboree held just east of Los Angeles, Calif., on the beautiful 3,000-acre Irvine Ranch.

The trip out and back proved to be something unusual in itself, and the sights they saw were many and varied.

While going through Colorado, the trainload of boys stopped off at Denver, where they saw many sights, such as the Red Rock National Park and the Buffalo Bill Museum. Proceeding to Salt Lake City, the 412 boys from Missouri attended Sunday church services and then visited the Mormon Temple, where they were privileged to hear the prophet and enjoyed a tour around the grounds.

After arriving in Los Angeles the boys took a tour of the city and were then loaded into Tanner buses and taken to the jamboree camp.

At the camp they encountered many interesting and fascinating events. One thing that amazed all of them was the vast amount of equipment that was there. The Army, Navy and Marines combined had an estimated one and one-half million dollars worth of equipment, including such things as sleeping tents, eating facilities, Concordia and other relatives in Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cook Jr. and son, Sedalia, returned home Saturday after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Cook.

The major movie companies also had a "hayday" at this jamboree. They filmed movies of almost all the happenings, and it so happened that the Sedalia boys were pictured in some events that will be sent behind the Iron Curtain for propaganda purposes.

Sunday was dedicated to a portion of the scout oath: "My duty to God." Mass services were attended by all in the morning, and that evening Vice-President Richard Nixon spoke at convocation services. After this impressive service, the group (50,000 boys from 25 countries) was asked to light candles and hold them in front of them. It was a thrilling spectacle to see such a sight as this, with such an air of dignity and humility.

The following days were spent

The following days were spent in the main course of the Jamboree. This was the earning of credits which the Jamboree counselors had set up for them in such fields as archery, handicraft and conservation. The scouts who counseled the campers were in charge of all these activities, with the exception of the conservation course which was led by the California game department.

One night was reserved as "Hollywood night." At this event name stars of Hollywood all assembled to produce a mass show for the boys. Bob Hope, Art Linkletter, Mitzie Gaynor, Dorothy Lamour and many others with equally important names assembled to "do their stuff" for the boys. It seems they overdid themselves a wee bit, however, because some of the less experienced boys couldn't take it when Dorothy Lamour started circulating through the camp after the show, and passed out some very choice kisses.

When the Hollywood festival finished some boys from Japan and Korea put on a fireworks display that had far outgrown anything the boys had seen before.

The campment had a drum and bugle corps which was "tops," had section campfire talent shows, and had a counselor who was a professional dart blower, and seemed to be quite the attraction.

The event went off pretty much as scheduled except for such incidents as a skunk around the bed of the Sedalia scouts, and a net blacksnake getting loose on the train, never to be found.

The boys are all home now—tired but happy, and looking forward to another such event next year.

Marian Toedtmann Finding 1953 Is Her Happiest Year

If someone had waved a magic wand over Miss Marian Toedtmann she couldn't be luckier—at least as far as 1953 is concerned.

On Aug. 7 Miss Toedtmann will be graduated from Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, with a major in vocational home economics.

On Aug. 16 she will become the bride of James D. Swisher, a college classmate from Windsor, in a ceremony at St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed Church in her home town of Hermann.

In the fall, Miss Toedtmann will take over a position as vocational home economics teacher in the Concordia High School.

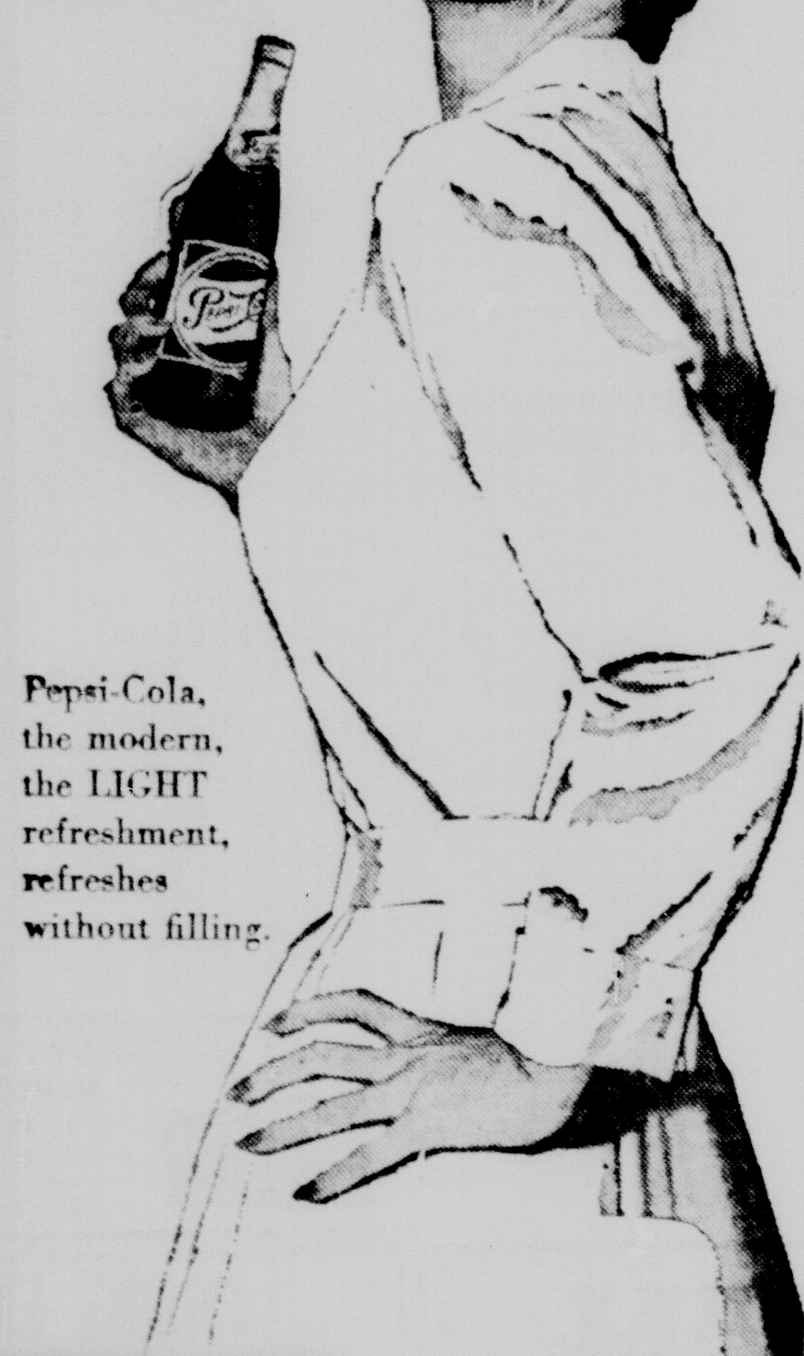

And when Mr. and Mrs. James D. Swisher move into their very first apartment at 906 Gordon Street in Concordia, Marian will cook her first meals as a bride on a brand new Perfection electric range which she recently won.

Miss Toedtmann hadn't thought of 1953 as being her "lucky year" until she'd attended the American Home Economics Association Convention, held in Kansas City a few weeks ago. During a tour of the convention hall, she signed up at a number of the booths.

accompanied by Johnny Flaspohler, owner of Johnny's Hobby Shop.

The meet will end at about 5 p.m. and the Sedalians will return home that same evening.

Hal Boyle's Column—

Dictionary for Languages Except the One for Women

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — There is a dictionary available today for every language except the language of women.

Scholars think world peace would be speeded if the people of every nation spoke the same language. That's a pretty hard thing to get everybody together on.

It seems to me that the first step would be to get everybody in the same household to speak the same language. That would bring peace in the home.

"Why that's silly," you say. "Everybody in our house speaks the same language—plain old English."

But do they? The average American home today has at least three separate and distinct language dialects. They are man talk, woman talk, and teen-age talk.

All of course, stem from school-book English. But, aside from this mutual ancestry, the three languages have little in common. And no one in a home can understand all three.

Ever listen to a teen-ager on a telephone? Completely mystifying. Every now and then you catch a familiar word or even a complete sentence—such as "Oh, he's a real square." But the words and sentences don't focus into any meaning. They don't make sense, except possibly to another teen-ager, and you can't even be sure of that.

But teen-age talk is really no more important than the pig latin of early childhood. Like pig latin, it is merely something the kids go through while growing up.

The real cause of misunderstanding today is the difference between man talk and woman talk. Basically, man talk means what it says, while woman talk means almost anything in the world but what it says.

This is the real reason why men find women mysterious. They expect a woman's conversation to make sense, when that often is the last thing in the world a woman has in mind when she opens her mouth.

When two men get together and find they have nothing to say they generally shut up. But two women can chat along comfortably for an hour without really saying anything. They both know it, but meanwhile they have had a fine time resting their brains while taking the tension off their vocal chords.

A man usually doesn't realize men and women speak different languages until after he marries. All of a sudden the little bride he thought he knew so well starts talking in Greek.

"How do you like the peas, dear?" she asks. And if he grunts, "fine, baby," all of a sudden she gets mad. Of course, what her remark really meant was, "Pass me the peas, you big baboon. Don't you see I don't have any?"

Although no one has asked him, Jim Swisher would probably tell the world that he is lucky, too. He's marrying the girl whom luck seems to have picked for its own.

Or, leaving a cocktail party, she may say, "Don't you think that tall blonde was quite attractive?" If he replies, "Boy, I'll say she was!—well, he's deep in the dog-house. What he should have replied was, "Baby, you made that blonde look like a wet mop after a hard day."

The key thing to realize is that you can't take a woman at her word—or you'll never understand her. And, naturally, a man must learn when a woman doesn't want to be understood. Sometimes she wants to be misunderstood. The art is to know when.

Over the years a married man cautiously finds out that anything his wife says has at least three possible meanings, two of which he can only guess at. But no man lives long enough to comprehend them all.

What is needed is a dictionary of woman talk. Each married man could put down all his wife's remarks and then list what he thinks they really mean. By pooling millions of these interpretations some sort of guide could be obtained to the confusing language of women.

Then, if your wife said, "Well, it looks like a nice day," you could thumb hurriedly through your dictionary and find out whether she meant her corns were hurting her or only that she wanted to go for a ride in the country.

Little League Sectional Tourney Opens Here Monday

Fans to See Best Players From 7 States

Kankakee to Meet Columbus at 7 P.M., Mt. Vernon Plays Santa Cruz, 9:30

Four Little League baseball teams, representing the best in the seven-state sectional area, gather at Sedalia's Little League Stadium Monday evening for the two-day Section 3 Little League Tournament.

Battling for a chance to go to Ft. Wayne, Ind., for the Region 6 tourney and then the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., are—Santa Cruz of St. Louis, Columbus, Neb., Mt. Vernon, Ill., and Kankakee, Ill.

These clubs won district play-offs at Joplin, Mo., Ottumwa, Iowa, Centralia, Ill., Peoria, Ill. They are the best of 99 Little Leagues in the seven-state (Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, and Illinois) area. In these leagues are more than 14,000 boys. Leaving Sedalia for Ft. Wayne will be 14 boys (one team), so only one in a thousand will survive the overall selection.

Each squad entered in the Sedalia tourney has shown balance of hitting strength and pitching finesse. Santa Cruz Looks Good For Missouri follows the "golden boys" are the Santa Cruz Knights. They waltzed through the Crystal City area play-off. Butler, in two tourney outings, one each at Crystal City and Joplin, the husky strikeout artist allowed only one run and six hits. He fanned 11 in the area tourney and 12 in the district. Butler not only is fast but uses a curve as his "out pitch".

He is backed by a hard-hitting, sharp-throwing pitcher, Scotty Seville, who is line-drive hitters with outfielder Jim Walsh and Catcher Gary Zimmet as the most consistent. Another highly-regarded pitcher leads the Columbus, Neb. unit into Sedalia. He is fast—batter Tom Ernst, who fired two no-hitters as his team advanced to the sectional. His latest effort was a 16-0 beauty against Le Mars, Iowa in the opening round of the Ottumwa District Tournament. His team went on to defeat Ottumwa, 6-2, in the final contest.

Due to Little League rules Ernst did not work the final game but is due to take the hill in the opener here. Mt. Vernon, Ill., probably traveled the roughest road of any of the teams entered here. Mt. Vernon ignores breaks. They had their final game wrapped up in a tight package, 7-0, when rain washed out their game with one out to go in the final contest official. However, in the replay, the Mt. Vernon boys came back to score a 3-0 triumph to win the trip to Sedalia.

The field in the Mt. Vernon path included the highly-touted Springfield, Ill., Dutch Leonards, who were edged, 1-0, by the Mt. Vernon batters in the Centralia opening game. Rounding out the field is the Kankakee (Ill.) Lions, who captured the Peoria, Ill. tourney by nipping Pekin, Ill. by a 7-6 margin.

The star of this encounter was pitcher Jerry Richa, who slammed a bases-loaded homer and was right in the clutch to insure the victory for his club.

The opening schedule here matches Kankakee against Columbus in the 7 p. m. opener Monday, with Mt. Vernon and Santa Cruz tangling in the 9:30 p. m. second contest. On Tuesday night the losers of Monday's games meet in the 7 p. m. first game (for third place), and Monday's winners play for the championship at 9:30 p. m.

Sectional tourney director Dick Sklar expects a crowd of more than 2,000 both nights. The games will be played in Sedalia's new Little League Stadium.

Springfield Generals Play Boeing Bombers In NBC Tournament

The Springfield Generals, 1953 Missouri State Semi-Pro champions have been scheduled against the Kansas State Champions, the Boeing Bombers of Wichita, Kas., at 9 p. m. Friday, Aug. 14 in the National Baseball Congress tournament at Wichita.

The Generals will play their second game of the tournament on Sunday, Aug. 16, their opponent to be announced later.

Fort Leonard Wood Hilltoppers, runner-up of the 1952 National tournament will be scheduled probably the middle of the first week of the tournament. The Hilltoppers are co-champions of Missouri, having won the honors in 1932 and did not participate in the state tournament this year, while the Generals forfeited a 3-game playoff.

Cockell Takes Split Decision Over Mathews

SEATTLE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Jubilant Don Cockell today packed away his first ring victory since winning the British Empire heavy-weight crown, with echoes of "we wuz robbed" outcries by Harry (Kid) Mathews' manager still ringing in his ears.

The squat, 211 pound Londoner came back from apparent defeat to blast Mathews to the canvas three times in the ninth round last night, and go on to take a 10-round split decision from the veteran Seattle fighter who ranks ninth in the U.S.

Walker Playing In State Sand Green Tourney

Ralph Walker, who recently placed third in Flight "B" in the Clinton sand green golf tourney, journeyed to Carrollton Saturday to play his qualifying rounds in the state sand green tourney, which is being held at the Carrollton Country Club, a 9-hole par 35 layout.

Walker, who is the only Sedalia participant in the event, scored rounds of 41-39-40 for his 18-hole qualifying score. He will play his 18-hole championship play today.

The tournament will consist of nine flights, which are: "A" through "H", with two trophies being awarded in each flight and a trophy to the medalist of the tourney.

Bowman Leads Race Drivers In The CMRA

Johnny Bowman, of Elm, raced off with the trophy honors at the weekly semi-modified car races at Sweet Springs Friday night, held on the track at Memorial Park and sponsored by the Central Missouri Racing Association.

Bowman also had the fastest time trials of the night for the quarter-mile oval of 20.4 seconds. In the trials 28 cars competed. The finish of the trophy race saw the fastest four cars of the time trials on the first four positions. Bowman, first; Crockett Thompson, Clinton, second; Scotty Seville, Kansas City, third; and Howard Compton, Olathe, Kan., fourth.

In the first heat race Ray Marr, Kansas City, first; Harold Krause, Sweet Springs, second; Joe Dennis, Clinton, third.

Second race Johnny Clark, Kansas City, first; Dave Ferguson, Odessa, second; Don Zummwalt, Slater, third.

Third race: Spencer Toellner, Kansas City, first; Scotty Seville, Kansas City, third; Bill Crenault, Kansas City, third.

In the consolation Doug Crank, Sweet Springs, in one of the fastest Chevrolet's known, headed a field of 13 cars all the way for first place; Bob Gray, Kansas City, second; Don Zummwalt, Slater, third; and Dick Darrah, Kansas City, came in from last place start to finish in the fourth place money.

Thirteen cars were entered in the feature race of 32 laps, which was won by Scotty Seville, who also presented a trophy. Seville also won the trophy race at Booneville last Wednesday night, on a new track. In the Sweet Springs feature second place honors went to Bill Crenault, and John Bowman, third; Joe Walker, Kansas City, fourth and fifth to Dave Ferguson of Odessa.

It was a quiet night as far as thrills and spills were concerned. However two rolls resulted, the first was when Warmie Eckles of Sedalia, rolled in the first heat and "Wild Bill" Cummings of Kansas City, who rolled in the feature event. Both got out of their cars and walked away uninjured but shaken up.

During the feature event, Art Dishinger, Kansas City, holding fourth spot had a tire blow out and the machine was thrown into the fence on the north corner of the track in front of the stands.

One driver was disqualified for rough driving in the feature event. At Booneville Wednesday Bob Esser of Sedalia, Bernie Nutt, Houstonia, and Jack Janssen of Columbia provided the thrills by rolling their cars on the straight-off-way in front of the stands.

The Booneville races are being sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and sanctioned by the Central Missouri Racing Association.

In the Association John Bowman still tops the list with 1545 points; Lucky Niemeyer is second with 1093 points; Seville, third with 1040 and Art Dishinger fourth with 705.

Four Pros Locked For Lead In Tam

Worsham, Douglas, Toski Tied For 2nd; Stranahan Leads In Amateur Tourney

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP)—Four veteran pros today slammed into a tie for the 54-hole lead of the $75,000 "World" championship to make tomorrow's bunched dash for the $25,000 first prize the greatest splash finish ever seen in the Tam O'Shanter golf extravaganza.

Locked at 209, seven strokes under par, after a third round of blow-ups were Al Bessink, Chandler Harper, Dave Douglas and Doug Ford.

Greatest choke-up in the pressure-laden scramble for the game's richest prize was by Doug Ford, the halfway leader with a 135.

Oliver drifted to a 37-42-79 today, winding up with a 7 on the 410-yard last hole.

Oliver's windup was almost typical of the leaders as they sprayed shots on the back nine while bucking brisk winds.

Ford, consistent 31-year-old money winner from Harrison, N. Y., had the smoothest sailing of the lot. He came in with a steady 33-34-67 to go with his previous rounds of 70-72.

Bessink finished with 34-36-70, Douglas with 34-38-72 and Harper with 35-35-71 to elbow into the 209 bracket with Ford, who finished 1½ hours ahead of them.

Only one shot away at 210 was Lew Worsham, who shared second place with Douglas and Bob Toski at the halfway point with 137.

Worsham took 35-37-73, starting out the last nine with a pair of birdies and a par then going over regulation on three of the next four holes.

Toski was still in a chase for the lead after a 36 on the front side, but the little 123-pounder eased in coming back with a 40, clustered by a two-over-par 6 on the 14th.

Clustered at 211 were Julius Boros, the defending champion, with a solid 35-36-71 and Freddie Haas, the new Ryder Cup team member, with a matched pair of 36-36-72.

Five were jammed at 212, including two former national inter-collegiate champions, Wally Ulric of Austin, Minn., and Earl Stewart, Jr., of Dallas, Jim Ferrier, Jimmy Demaret and Jack Burke.

Grouped at 213 were Lloyd Mangrum, leading money winner, Ed Furgol, Cary Middlecoff, Tommy Bolt and Toski.

Thirty others were par or better for the distance, including Hector Thompson of Glasgow, Scotland, at 215. He topped the overseas delegation of 20 pros.

The other world championship divisions shaped up this way: Men's amateur—Frank Stranahan, 213; women's—Patty Berg with 77 and Babe Zaharias with 75.

Women's amateur—"Wiff" Smith, Guadalajara, Mex., with 77 for 243 and a whooping 13-stroke lead on Martha Baker of La Grange, Ill.

Other scorers today in the men's pro included: Dutch Harrison, Ardmore, Okla., 73 for 214; Skee Riegel, Tulsa, Okla., 74 for 215; Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., 72 for 217; Bill Nary, Kansas City, Mo., 76 for 217; Bo Wininger, Oklahoma City 71 for 218; Paul McGuire, Wichita, Kan., 75 for 220.

In the women's pro, Marilyn Smith, Wichita, Kan., had an 81 for 238.

Dodgers Hand Reds 5th Straight Loss; Win 7-4

CINCINNATI, Aug. 8 (AP)—Roy Campanella of Brooklyn socked in six runs on two homers tonight to grease the skids for Cincinnati's fifth straight defeat, 7-4, and set a new National League record for catchers.

Campy's 28th and 29th home runs enabled the Dodgers to keep their 7½-game lead over the runner-up Milwaukee Braves and shrug off Redleg homers by Ted Kluszewski, Bus Bel and Willard Marshall.

Sports Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

SEDALIA becomes the Capitol of Little League baseball for a seven-state area, come Monday night when the Section 3 tournament opens at the Little League Stadium. Four teams comprising the "cream of the crop" will be seen in action in two days play.

It is up to we people in Sedalia to give these little visitors a real welcome and show them the hospitality they so deserve. It is not that we want to spoil these young ball players, but when they go back home we want them to always remember Sedalia and to tell their parents what a great time they had here.

There are some people who will say this Sectional Tournament means nothing to Sedalia, but in an overall picture it is good, clean, wholesome advertising the town can stand.

No doubt the stadium seats and the temporary bleachers will be filled with people watching these eight to 12 year old ball players in action and picking their favorite team to win to go to the regional tourney at Ft. Wayne, Ind., then to Williamsport, Pa., scene of Little League World Series.

It will be good publicity which money could not buy and if it could it would run into dollar value which could not be estimated. For example, the newspapers in the following towns and cities have been and will no doubt carry results of this sectional tournament which in turn will mean column upon column of news copy with SEDALIA mentioned.

Here are the towns where SEDALIA is mentioned: Columbus, Neb., the city of one of the tournament teams, Omaha, Lincolnton, Grand Island, Nebraska; Davenport, Des Moines, Ottumwa, Clinton, Le Mars, Iowa; Peoria, Kankakee, from which a team comes, Centralia, Mt. Vernon, from which another team hails, Chicago, Springfield, Illinois; Joplin, Kansas City, St. Louis, from where Santa Cruz comes, Festus, Lamar, Lebanon, Aurora, in Missouri; Bartlesville, Oklahoma, Leadville, Colorado, Leoti, Parsons, Ft. Scott, Kan., Ft. Wayne, Ind., Canton, Ohio, and Williamsport, Pa., even a lot of towns too numerous to mention.

TO think these four teams each consisting of 14 boys, represent 14,000 boys who are playing in 99 Little Leagues in the seven state area comprising Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, and Illinois.

Maybe some people don't think much of Little League, maybe they have been reading some stories which attack Little League. But I believe the writer was sincere about his thoughts, on the other hand there must be some good coming from it.

Little League has done much in Sedalia, at least the report given men this summer only two boys who were talked to by Juvenile Officer Cecil Glenn were Little Leaguers, and these youngsters hadn't done anything serious. In fact so minor was the complaint that Glenn didn't have to make a report. Thus I believe it has helped in juvenile delinquency in a big way.

I shall have more to write about this later.

GAYLORD WHITE and Mrs. White were visitors in Sedalia the past week preparing the schedule for the Missouri State Fair auto racing. White who promotes the races with Al Sweeney under the sanction of the International Motor Contest Association.

White predicts bigger and better racing events at the fair than in previous years. More entries have been made and just as fine racing cars will be speeding around the mile and half dirt tracks.

White also is endeavoring to start an Auto Race Driver Futurity, the same as in Des Moines, Ia., which is clicking and will provide—in 1955—one of the highest dirt track purses yet to be available.

This year the Futurity was started and is now closed as far as the 1955 event is concerned. Eighty drivers entered and these drivers at various periods of the year will invest in the purse up to $100, each $100 invested will be matched by White and Sweeney, the money being placed in a Des Moines bank in escrow.

It is noted that of the 80 drivers, Missouri leads the list with 19, while Indiana is second with 11. What is surprising only five Iowa drivers signed up. Many of the same drivers desire the futurity to be started at the Missouri State Fair.

One thing for certain it will draw new faces to the speed sport along with new auto racing equipment.

I think it is a good idea and well worth the Missouri fair officials giving it some thought.

The Futurity races are 100 laps, making it necessary for a driver to be in good physical condition and having excellent equipment for such a grind.

Grinn, who took over as Braves' manager last June from Tommy Holmes, also refused to discuss salary but said he was "well pleased" with the financial arrangements.

The Braves, who finished seventh last year in Boston, currently are in second place, 7 games behind the National League leading Brooklyn Dodgers. They have been in the first division almost continuously since the start of the season.

T and O Defeated La Monte 11 To 8

T and O Quarry softballers defeated La Monte Friday night at House Park 11-8.

John Buckley was the big gun for T and O with his circuit drive, triple, a walk in four trips to the plate.

La Monte staged a rally in the fourth which fell short as the steady pitching of John Mosby in the clutches, eliminating all threats. Mosby struckout 14 while walking nine.

Mosby and Martin was the T and O battery while Elwell and Fife handled the La Monte work.

T and O has no schedule for Tuesday night.

Home runs—St. Louis, Musial, Repulski.

American Trapshoot Tourney Opens Friday

VANDALIA, Ohio, Aug. 8 (AP)—America's loudest sports events, the 34th annual Grand American Trapshoot, opens its nine-day million-dollar program next Friday.

It's probably the most unpredictable and peculiar of the big-time competitions.

Shooters, some 2,000 of them, will swarm in from all the states and Canada's provinces, Cuba, the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Alaska, and Mexico, and they'll split up around $400,000 in prize money.

Columbia Undeclared Wins Title; Defeats Fulton In Finals 10-3

Town And Country Placed Third When Defeated By Fulton On Thursday Night

The Columbia Semmons Furniture Co., walked off with the Sedalia Girls Softball tournament trophy after Columbia defeated Fulton 10-3.

The Sedalia Town and Country team placed third, having defeated the United Broom Co., of Kansas City, Kan., Wednesday night then lost to Fulton on Thursday.

Columbia took a first, inning lead and was never passed. Scoring two in the first, their only threat came when Fulton tallied one in the second inning and then tied the score in the top of the third, scoring another run.

The tie score was not to stand for long as Columbia came back in their half of the stanza and rapped out three runs to put a cinch on the lead and held it the remainder, adding two more in the fourth, two in the fifth and another in the sixth.

Fulton was able to score one more run, that being in the top of the fifth inning.

Burks, the Columbia hurler put her team in front in the first when she hit a home run to score Bremerkamp ahead of her. Burks had two hits for four trips to the plate, while Bremerkamp had two for three times at the plate, one a double.

Following the game the team captains were presented trophies. Miss Sue Burks, received the first place trophy for Columbia; Miss Nellie Yurner, the second place trophy for Fulton; and Miss Earlene Walz, third place trophy for Town and Country.

Meetings Of Committees Of NCAA In Chicago

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 8 (AP)—The annual mid-summer meetings of the executive committee and the Council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association begin Wednesday in Chicago.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers said today that the executive committee will meet Wednesday and Thursday and the council Aug. 15-17.

A major item on the agenda for the policy-directing council will be consideration of a report by a membership committee on three cases of alleged non-observance of NCAA requirements by member institutions, said Byers.

The NCAA television committee and executive committee also will submit reports to the council along with special committees on small college relations and public relations.

The council is expected to forward recommendations on limiting the number of contests in football and basketball, to the 48th annual convention to be held in Cincinnati in January, said Byers.

Horseshoe Pitchers Want Tourney Here; Dates To Be Set

The Missouri State Horseshoe Pitchers' Assn. is interested in starting an annual Class B Horseshoe Pitching tournament open to the State of Missouri, to be held in Sedalia. A group interested in the sport has approached the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce as a possible sponsor of the tournament.

With a 2-2 record to date, they now have a heavy schedule for the week with Moberly today, Mexico here on Wednesday night, a double header on Friday night under the Liberty Park lights with Brookfield.

Brookfield and the Chiefs will play off a postponed game, as a result of the recent Semi-Pro tournament. The first game will be at 7 p. m., a nine inning affair, to be followed by a seven-inning game.

If they can win the remaining game—they are in. If not, then they will have to go into a play-off with the winner of the second half to decide the 1953 championship.

The champions of the league will play the Kansas City champions in a three out of five series for the state title.

Last Thursday night the Chiefs behind the hurling of Snitz won over the Booneville Lions 7-3, at Booneville.

Manager George Thompson announced Saturday night he is using Donnie Delph on the mound against the Miners this afternoon.

Yankee's American League lead to eight full games.

Kuzava needed only two more outs for a no-hit, no-run game when Boyd doubled to right center with one out in the ninth.

The next two White Sox went down quickly.

The brilliant one-hitter, following a fine five-hit shutout by Whitey Ford, stretched the White Sox string of scoreless innings to 25 as the Yankees took the first three games of the big four-game series.

State Sends Best Drivers To '53 Fair

Missouri daredevilry is riding at a new high peak, says Secretary Rollo E. Singleton of the State Fair.

Never in the annals of the exposition at Sedalia have so many home state big car auto racers filed for the annual motor speed competition, says Singleton.

Nor, he says, has the caliber of the Missouri competition rated so high.

Eleven home guards have already entered the two days of IMCA racing scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 23, and Saturday, Aug. 29, according to the fair executive.

Among these are five daredevils who are slated to wheel Offenhauser-powered racers, the fastest on American tracks today.

Until half a dozen years ago, it was uncommon to find more than one of two Missourians on a state fair race entry roster, according to Singleton. And they never did much against the out-of-state competition.

But this year two of the entrants, Jimmy Campbell of Bates City, and Bob (Slats) Slater will rate as strong favorites, no matter what opposition confronts them.

Slater won the feature race at the fair last year, spinning around the mile track at 100 mph speed, and was the top money winner of the state fair circuits west to Utah and south to Louisiana and Florida.

Campbell, who owns and operates a pair of Missouri farms near Bates City, is the defending National Speedways dirt track champion of 1952. He will return with his powerful pink-nosed Offenhauser.

Other Offenhauser pilots enrolled for the state fair events include Jerry Kemp of St. Louis, Clyde Sullivan of Kansas City and Billy Jim, also of Kansas City.

Herschell Wagner, from Independence, will be at the wheel of the Lawhon special, a car built by the Lawhon brothers of St. Joseph, and rated by many as the next thing to an Offenhauser.

Two more St. Louis entries are Jimmy Wegscheider, a past state fair favorite, and Eddie Loetcher who will drive the Wayne Chevrolet entry of Art Alexander, also of St. Louis.

The remaining two Missouri entrants are Jay Stears, of Independence, and Willie Hunzicker of Kansas City.

College Stars Ready To Try To Upset Lions

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (P)—A past-expert, speedy collegiate squad will be gunning for an upset against the powerful Detroit Lions in the 20th annual All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

The game will be telecast nationally (Du Mont TV network) at 7:30 p. m. (CST).

The underdog collegians, coached for the second straight year by Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, will be quarterbacked by a trio of extraordinary passers, Jack Scarbath of Maryland, Tommy O'Connell of Illinois and Dale Samuels of Purdue.

Their aerial shots to such receivers as Bernie Flowers of Purdue, Paul Dekker of Michigan State, and Harry Babcock of Georgia, plus a rugged, mobile defense, could produce the first collegiate triumph since 1950's 17-7 decision over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The series between the cream of the collegiate crop and the champions in the National Football League now stands 11 to 6 in favor of the pros with two ties.

As usual, Dodd has rounded up the best available performers from the 1952 collegiate season. A notable absentee is halfback Billy Vessels of Oklahoma, who is committed to start Canadian play the same night of the All-Star game.

Dodd's elite "half-hundred" lists eight players from the All-American squad of last fall.

These include Scarbath, tackle Gilbert of Mississippi, guards Marvin Matuszak of Tulsa, and John Michels of Tennessee, and center Pete Brown of Georgia Tech on the offense, and end Tom Scott of Virginia, and line backers Don Moorman of UCLA and Dick Tamburo of Michigan State.

Although offensive tactics will catch the eyes of the nation's TV fans, this contest may resolve into a superb defensive battle.

All-Star success against the behemoth pros always has hinged on defensive finesse and this collegiate team may offer surprising resistance to the pro champion Lions.

The collegians aren't heavy, as pro weights go, but they have fine defensive speed, especially at the halfback positions where Lion pressure will be applied by Bobby Layne's passing to 230-pound Leon Hart, Cloyce Box and the other fine Detroit receivers.

Dodd did well priming the All-Star defenses last year when the Los Angeles Rams finally overcame a 7-0 deficit with a last period rally for a 10-7 victory.

The All-Stars will have a versatile attack with Scarbath's split-T passing and running, and elements of the regular T with O'Connell and Samuels at the throttle.

O'Connell and Samuels after the All-Star game will become bitter rivals as new quarterbacks of the Chicago Bears and Cardinals respectively.

All-Star running power will come from the likes of Don McAluliffe of Michigan State, Gib Dawson of Texas, Johnny Olaszowski of California, Billy Reynolds of Pittsburgh, Andy Kozar of Tennessee and Buck MacPhail of Oklahoma.

The All-Star's defensive halfback work will be in the hands of Fred Bruney of Ohio State, Dave Flood of Notre Dame, Val Joe Walker of Southern Methodist, Bobby Moorehead of Georgia Tech and Mickey Lakos of Vanderbilt.

Schlitz Leaders Lose First Game In Tournament

The Schlitz Leaders dropped their first game in the District Softball tournament at Marshall last Thursday night to the Emma Merchants 4-6. They go back to the tournament for their second game at 8:15 tonight.

The game was one of the closest of the tournament coming out of the seventh inning all tied up 4-4, and nine innings had to be played before the knot was broken, when the Merchants tallied two runs and the Leaders were unable to score.

Tommy Sanders pitched a creditable game for the Leaders but errors on the part of his team caused him too much trouble. The Leaders hit Bredhoff for eight with Weller, Evans and Swisher each getting two safeties each.

The team meets at 4:30 Wilkeson at 6:15 p.m. for the trip to Marshall.

Merry-Go-Round— Los Angeles Gets Special Bonanza On Public Housing

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The last public function Senator Taft attended was the Public Housing Conference on May 12. With him at the time was Sen. Tom Hennings of Missouri, Democrat. This was two weeks before the doctors told him on May 26 that he had cancer.

Taft looked all in.

"I shouldn't have come here," he told Hennings. "I seem to be tired all the time. The doctor says I have some kind of anemia. I wouldn't have come at all except that I accepted the invitation a long time ago and I didn't want to let these people down. After all, public housing is one of my babies."

But while Taft lay on his deathbed two months later, his Republican colleagues, led by the man who succeeded him—Knowland of California—did some weird hatchet-work on his housing baby.

Seizing a moment when other slum-clearance senators were absent in New Hampshire attending the funeral of another great Republican, Charles Tobey, the Senate passed by voice vote a bill which drastically reduces the public housing program Taft helped to pioneer; also permits cities which have already started housing programs to back out of them; and finally gives a special bonanza to Los Angeles.

The latter is the most amazing of all. For the bill contains a special rider permitting Los Angeles to get reimbursed at the national taxpayers' expense for about $10,000,000 worth of architects' fees, land, other housing plans which the real estate lobby has now tossed out.

In brief, the taxpayers of Boston and Pensacola, Seattle and Louisville, plus all the other cities, will now pay for the discarded housing plans of Los Angeles.

City of the Angels

The "City of the Angels" had started to clear out Mexican and Negro slums, prepared to build public housing projects under the Taft Housing Act. Then the real estate lobby got busy. After a terrific campaign in which all kinds of money was spent to defeat Mayor Fletcher Bowron, Republican, the real estate lobby elected Congressman Norris Poulson, Republican, as new mayor of the City of the Angels.

Then Poulson came back to Washington, persuaded his two fellow Californians, Senator Knowland and Congressman John Phillips, to tack a special rider on the independent office appropriation bill giving Los Angeles a special bonanza which may run up to $10,000,000.

Los Angeles is the only city in the U.S.A. so favored by Senator Knowland and Congressman Phillips. But when other cities hear of this, the line is bound to form on the right to stage similar raids on the alleged economy-minded Congress.

Amazing fact is that Eisenhower's won housing chief, Ex-Congressman Albert Cole of Kansas, gave his O.K. to this special legislation benefiting Los Angeles, as well as to the general drastic scaling down of the Taft housing program.

Note—How devoted Taft was to the cause of public housing is illustrated by a hitherto unpublished event in July of 1948. The Republican convention was meeting in Philadelphia. Taft was running for the presidential nomination. The convention was waiting for him to get to Philadelphia. Nevertheless he delayed his departure until he could go over to the House of Representatives, buttonhole GOP leaders Martin and Halleck and tell them they must push public housing.

Women Should Mature Or Risk Being Faded Copies

By RUTH MILLETT

Ten years ago Jane was an unusually attractive woman. She had the natural beauty of youth, a charming kind of helplessness that emphasized her youth and many enthusiasms which never lasted very long.

Ten years ago Jane got by very well just as she was. But Jane, like so many attractive women, hasn't grown up as she has grown older. She is just a somewhat faded version of what she was 10 years ago.

She hasn't replaced the young look, so charming 10 years ago, with careful grooming. She isn't a good-looking woman of 35, but a poor copy of the woman she was at 25.

She hasn't realized that the kind of helplessness that is appealing in a young woman seems careless and scatterbrained in a woman.

She's not yet learned to carry an enthusiastic approach to a new interest through to completion. She's lost the respect of those who know her well enough to realize that what she is excited about now will be forgotten in a few weeks' time.

Still Wants Admiration

Jane still expects others to like and admire her for no better reason than that she is Jane. She hasn't realized that though friends may be made easily it takes thoughtfulness, cooperation, and the willingness to carry one's part of the load to keep their admiration and respect.

It would pay Jane, as it would pay any woman, to take stock of herself and find out if she has been marking time, instead of becoming a more mature and responsible person.

It's sad when a woman of 30 is a faded copy of what she was at 20. And when at 40 she is still just a less attractive version of what she was at 30.

Manners Make Friends—

When Mrs. Brown got home from the hospital with her new baby she sat down and wrote notes to all the friends who had brought flowers to the hospital or brought a gift for the baby when they called. Since she had thanked each person at the time it wasn't absolutely necessary to write the thank-you notes.

Maybe that is why they were so much appreciated.

Restless, Fussy Children May Be Spoiled Or Insecure

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Mrs. S. asks for a column on restless and fussy children.

"My 4½-year-old daughter," she says, "has been a more or less fussy child since infancy. Her constant restlessness and not knowing what to do with herself has gone to extremes. Although she is badly spoiled (we are staying where there are five grown-ups in the house) I can't believe this is the entire cause.

"She is never satisfied with doing anything for more than five minutes and she worries about everything and anything constantly. Do you think she will outgrow this?"

I should add that Mrs. S. says the doctor has examined her daughter and found nothing physically wrong.

Here, evidently, is a problem with which many parents are faced to a greater or lesser degree. Some of the things mentioned by Mrs. S. should be considered normal for a 4½-year-old child, such as the youngster's being not satisfied to do anything for more than five minutes. Practically all small children are unable to concentrate for long on one thing, and grownups should not expect them to.

In a way this may supply part of the clue to the problem since the fact that Mrs. S. considers lack of concentration as a fault suggests that perhaps she is expecting too much of her 4-year-old.

From the information given it does sound as though this youngster was overly nervous and perhaps unhappy. She may be overindulged by the man grownups with whom she comes in contact in the house or she may feel that her parents are neglecting her for other interests. Either of these could make the youngster emotionally upset and "fussy" as the mother calls it.

Needs Security

A child needs to feel the security which only the parent can supply; but there is a need also for increasing freedom and responsibility in a world in which the child eventually will have to fare by himself.

Discipline is necessary if nervousness in younger—and older—children is to be avoided. Discipline need not be harsh—in fact, it's just as easy to make a child nervous by excessive harshness as it is by a lack of discipline altogether. The proper choice of physical punishment or other forms of discipline such as confinement to the bedroom, is difficult and often a real test of parenthood.

Parents can help most by watching the physical and mental development of their children and maintaining calm discipline and good example. Children want affection and a show of interest in their affairs. Too little attention from the parents, like too much, can lead toward emotional instability, bad behavior, or just "fussiness" as Mrs. S. calls it.

Indulging Susan's Demands Are Just Illusion of Love

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Bert was 11 when he drew a picture for a psychologist friend of mine. It was a terrible picture. For Bert, who was born in an institution for unmarried mothers, had never experienced love. He confided this fact by drawing a procession of faces across his yellow paper that were as vague and featureless as the unremembered faces of the matrons, social workers and foster parents with whom he'd lived.

One day, a well-intentioned lady decided to show love for Bert. She invited him to her home. She planned a toffee pull with her own children. She planned a simple picnic supper under the trees on her own lawn.

But when Bert arrived, it appeared that he didn't want to pull toffee. He didn't want potato salad and hamburgers on the lawn. He wanted to go to the movies. He wanted supper at a local road house. Bert did not want love from the well-intentioned lady. He wanted her to spend money on him.

Bert was an over-demanding child. His insatiable greed for expensive favors was his cynical and sick distrust of love. Though he desperately needed it he couldn't take it. When it was offered to him he had to keep testing it with demands for bigger and more expensive favors.

In less degree, the greedy suspiciousness may be at work in the daughter of a reader who complains that she can never satisfy her child's demands for costly things and privileges.

"For three weeks," she writes, "Susan has been sulking because we couldn't afford to let her join a wealthy girl friend in an expensive 'duke' ranch vacation."

In such situations, we always have to consider the probability that Susan has not been getting the love she should have been getting.

If we have been truly loving Susan, we can easily deny her what we can't afford. But if we've been secretly resenting her, we can't. We not only have to indulge her excessive demands, but encourage her to make them. By granting those demands we can maintain our illusion that we love her—and evade our actual dislike of her by placing all the responsibility for our bad relationship on Susan.

We can think of ourselves as a "generous" parent and of Susan as an "ungrateful" child. This is not love. It is hostility and self-defense. Susan can't possibly trust such insincerity. Like Bert, she has to keep testing us with over-demanding.

Ali and 'Chip' Meet In Bali

Dr. Ali Sastroamidjojo, Indonesian ambassador to the United States, recently returned to Washington after a trip to his homeland, but he is going right back again to accept appointment as premier in the new cabinet.

On his last trip to his country, Dr. Ali visited the island of Bali, the tourist paradise famed for its native dancers.

Right in the middle of a festival he came upon Lawrence W. "Chip" Robert, former Democratic political leader in the FDR days. The two men had never met in Washington, but Robert explained he tried to come to Bali once a year. The round trip fare, by the way, is about $1,500.

Taking the Reins

Democrat Pick-Ups—

The garage attached to the house makes a nice breezeway when it is opened, and during the first shower of the recent rain a group of boys of various ages sat in there and watched the much needed down-pour.

It was a right good one, but it didn't last very long and one of the older boys who realized how much the rain was needed was a little disappointed when it slowed down and stopped.

"Come on rain," he said, "Don't stop. The little five-year-old boy looked up earnestly: 'God gets tired,' he said. 'He can't make it rain all the time.'"

"There's one of your mans, Mama," the small boy said to his grandmother, and everything out of her purse was asking him about different things he saw on the farm, and "Did your other grandmother have chickens?" she asked.

"No," came the reply, "but she had pancakes and I sure did enjoy them."—H. L.

One of the men employees in a Sedalia firm wanted to go home to lunch but none of the company cars were handy at the time so he called his wife and asked her to have their son drive down and get him — but the son didn't happen to be home.

"I'll take you home," offered a woman co-worker, "My car is right down the street."

She began to look in her purse for the keys, but they weren't there. She emptied everything out of her purse and everything out of a woman's purse is something, too — but with all the things in that purse there were no car keys.

Then she told him to wait, she must have left the keys in the car, so away she went down to where she always parks. She looked around, she didn't see her car anywhere, and then the thought struck her. Her car wasn't there, she remembered because her Dad had brought her down to work that morning, so she had to go back and tell the young man that she couldn't take him home after all—she didn't have her car. — H. L.

The minister was a dinner guest in the home of a family of his congregation where there was a small girl.

The large platter of chicken was brought in and passed first to the minister, who hesitated to take a piece as he looked the platter over to find his favorite.

The little girl watched. He was taking so long and the suspense was just too much. Finally she leaned over toward him and said: "Don't take the gizzard."—H. L.

For three days the little girl had worried over her loose tooth which her father wanted to pull, but she wouldn't give in. Then it happened—that tooth came out just as nice as you please at the band concert at Liberty Park.

She could hardly wait until the band stopped playing that number. She wanted to run up there to the bandstand to tell her daddy. The last note sounded, the child rushed to the bandstand and yelled: "Hello, Daddy."

The young man right in front of his trumpet hardly set away from his mouth, looked down at the little girl held up a small pearl-like object and beamed up at him: "Daddy," she said, "I pulled my tooth."—H. L.

"What is your doggie's name?" asked a woman of a pretty little blonde girl who was talking about her dog.

"Feet," she said the little girl.

"What?" questioned the woman, thinking she had misunderstood. "Feet," repeated the child and the woman just said "On." Somehow it sounded like the child said "Feet," so she let it go at that.

A day or so later the youngster was going by with the overgrown puppy bounding awkwardly along beside her. She turned a corner, the dog, started to go straight ahead. "Come on, Feet," she called.

The dog didn't come on and she called again: "Feet." The woman looked at her daughter. The name that they both thought the child had said a few nights before was "Feet." Now they decided she must have said "Pete."

A few days later a neighbor woman, who lives next door to the little girl, came by with the dog and the two women were talking about her. It was then the first woman found she really hadn't misunderstood the child at all — the dog's name was "Feet." Then the neighbor woman went on to explain that when the family first got the little black and white puppy, its feet were so big it could hardly waddle along. So

Beside the Laughing Water

A Romance by
LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

THE STORY: New Irish Grace's problem is how to tell Gavin Wayland that she is really Lesley Gray, the London actress, who broke her engagement to her brother Giles, and whom he blames for Giles' death in action during the war. Lillith loves Gavin, but she does not want to tell the story that will disillusion her father.

XVII

SOON came the term's end and the break-up for the Christmas vacation—a joyous time that had its touches of sadness. One day the school hummed and thrummed and was alive with young bustling, eager life; the next it was like a tomb, only the sound of the clock booming out the hours forlornly in the winter stillness, the metallic scrape of old Joe Pascoe's shovel as he scooped the snow off the chapel steps.

But Lillith didn't mind. There was only one person in the world who was not with her now, and that was far from her nor she from him. They were working hard on his book now, putting their life and interest into it, watching it grow with eagerness, now cast down into the slough of despond when the chapters limped or the theme bogged down, now lifted to the pinnacles of hope and light when a part came off with a flash of fire.

Archer had asked her to have Christmas dinner with him at a hotel in town where there was a dance afterwards, and without hesitation she consented. She owed this to him, she told Gavin who seemed to understand—it was his Christmas-box and the least she could give him.

"I haven't told him yet," she said, "about us. But Archer's psychic where I'm concerned. I think he knows."

"Archer doesn't like it much, I'll bet. He has some ambitions himself, I think."

"Yes," she didn't want to talk about what had been between her and Archer. To her it was sacred and she would always remember it and with it his gentleness, his quiet friendship and lasting loyalty.

"Odd chap. I met him during the war, in London. Oh, here and there. He wasn't much for fun—always seemed to be seeking the Holy Grail."

She didn't have to give Archer any sort of apology for Gavin Wayland. He had seen it coming, he told her and he hoped and was sure she would find happiness.

"I'll always regret," he said, "I'll always want you and I don't think there'll be another girl—"

"Oh, Arch, how silly! You'll find some other girl."

With eyes as wise but kinder—she was not sure, I'm cursed with the dreary faculty of knowing what I want from life, from love, and it's not so good, I tell you. There is no compromise for us unfortunates, no second-best or alternative choice. It is this one or nothing—and you were the one for me."

"You—you make me feel as if I had your happiness in my hands."

"And you have Lillith. But then, my happiness is yours, you see, and I'll not mind watching your own bliss. You can believe that. Wayland's a good chap—lots of dash and go to him and fine stuff in his make-up."

"I'm glad to hear you say that, Archer. He said he'd met you overseas and that he didn't think you had too high an opinion of him."

"We all had a lot of puppy in us then, I guess. The good ones got it knocked out of them. We're old dogs now."

THEY

THEY were singing Christmas carols that night, the people clustered around the tall fir tree that had been erected in the middle of the city's largest square and adorned with ornaments and strings of colored lights that winked on and off. Archer parked his little car by the hotel and they walked over and joined in the singing.

A chorus of French students sang their own Noël to their rich voices rising and falling in exquisite harmony on the frosty air and when they had finished and were trooping across the park they broke into their beloved, Alouette:

Alouette, gentille alouette, Alouette, je te plumerai.

Fleetingly she thought of Giles, of the dark morning in the converted mews and the great voice booming from the bath and Porphy Ewart with the lipstick smeared across her cheek.

She put the thought from her. It had no place here in this fine, clean hour; no place in her life ever. It was done with.

"Archer—" She looked up at him pleadingly. "You aren't angry at me—"

HE smiled then. "I could never be angry with you. Oh, about the canoe, of course—but that was different. A woman's only a woman but a good canoe is a way of getting across the water. No—" He dropped all the banter—"I'm not angry with you, my darling. I'll never feel any different where you're concerned. You don't need me to tell you this, surely. You're always tops with me, Lillith—always have been. And whenever you need me, why—just whistle."

"And it will make no difference in our friendship?"

"When you go to the wigwam of the proud Pottawattamy chief, Eagle From Over the Water will sulk in his own hogan for a while, in his mud-wall hogan beside the Laughing Water, but presently, maybe on ground-hog day, he'll poke his nose out and call for a noggin of firewater."

"Oh, Archer! What can I do with you?"

"Just about everything. Your slave, madame. But I must needs jest with you. Can't you see my heart is breaking?"

And he wasn't smiling then.

Today's Poem

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

Behold, the star of Bethlehem
Hangs in a cloudless sky,
Means this the coming of a king
The wisemen prophesy?
The shepherds watching on the hill
Upon this glorious night
Are dazzled and are filled with awe

To see a star so bright,
And as they watch the angels
There in the Heavens sing
The coming of their Savior
Who is Christ, the promised king.

And in a lowly manger
They find him as he lay
There near his Holy Mother
Asleep upon the hay.

Next in his home in Nazareth,
Now quiet a little boy
He smiles at his mother
And fills her heart with joy;
And helps each day his father,
A man so kind and good,
Who works as carpenter
To build things out of wood;
No wonder that they loved the boy.

And all his pets did, too,
For always he was seeing
What nice things he could do:
To make a little errand,
To make the work more light,
To say or do a kindly thing
To make their day more bright.

There in the Jewish temple
The learned men of that day
Stood looking at him—wondering
At what he had to say:
A little boy of only twelve
His face aglow with love
Stood there in that great temple
And told of Heaven above,
So happy in his preachings
Of life for which he yearned
He did not miss his parents
Until they returned.

He sat about the temple
And he walked upon the street,
And smiled he down upon each
Little child he chanced to meet;
He was muscular and brown
For an outdoor man was he,
And his eyes were filled with love.

And his face was sweet to see;
Yes, they clamored all about him
For their faith he seemed to win
Jesus opened up his heart
And he took the children in:
And they grew to know and love him.

As he went about each day
And with smiling little faces
They would leave their childish play
Just to cling to his garments
Or sit upon his knee
And listen to the stories
Of the man of Galilee.

The lonely road to Calvary
His cross he humbly bore,
Where he had preached and taught
Not many months before:
"To death! To death!" they Cruelly cried,
To nail him to the cross till he

Looking Backward

By Hazel N. Lang

Would hang until at last he'd die
He'd die in agony;
And so they placed him on the cross,
But lo, the darkness came until
The crowd began to draw away
In fear and terror from the hill;

The thunder rumbled, lightning flashed,
The earth beneath them trembled, too,
But there upon the cross he prayed:
"Forgive, they know not what they do."

And on the third day Mary
As she had done each day,
Went to the tomb of Jesus
Went there to weep and pray,
But there she found it empty
An angel at the door
Told Mary Magdalene
That Christ was there no more.

He said her Lord was risen
And as she turned around
There standing close beside her
Her Lord, her Christ she found,
He had risen from the dead,
He who had died to save,
He who died for you and me
And what a life he gave.

And then our Lord ascended
Up to his home with God
No longer did he wander
Upon this earthly sod;
But everywhere his stories
Are told and told and told,
We love to hear them ever
They seem not to grow old.

And from his throne in Heaven
He hears each little prayer
And blesses little children
Who live just anywhere.

High Wind Hits
St. Louis Co.:
Tower Snapped

ST. LOUIS (P)—A violent storm with winds estimated at hurricane force, swept through St. Louis County and parts of St. Louis late yesterday. The 320-foot high radio tower of the Missouri Highway Patrol was broken off.

No one was reported injured in the storm which included torrential rain and hailstones.

Capt. L. B. Howard of the patrol said the storm must have been the tail of a tornado since the tower, in the county, was designed to withstand winds up to 100 miles an hour.

Jack Frohlichstein, weather bureau observer in suburban University City didn't measure the wind but he estimated it at 75 miles an hour.

"It was definitely hurricane force," he added.

Trees were uprooted and streets were blocked in University City, Clayton and the west and north sections of St. Louis.

Store windows were broken in the business section of Clayton. The storm, which apparently

Demo Governors Want Middle-of-the-Road Candidate for 1956

By JACK BELL
SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 8 (P)—Democratic governors believe their party is bursting its traditional seams and its victory-hungry members may nominate a middle-of-the-road candidate for president in 1956.

That is the impression this reporter brings away from the 45th annual Governors Conference here, where 13 of the 18 Democratic governors could agree as a whole on only one major political development—that President Eisenhower is just as popular with the voters as he ever was. Five Democrats didn't attend.

A cross-section of opinion, as gathered by this reporter, seemed to add up to bad news for former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the 1952 nominee, if he wants to run again for president.

The shrewdest politicians among the Democratic governors don't believe that another Eisenhower-Stevenson campaign would land their nominee in the White House. Some of them hope fervently that Eisenhower will not run again, giving them a chance to match what they call a "liberal" against a Republican "reactionary."

The majority apparently believe the only way to beat Eisenhower, if he seeks a second term, is to match what the President calls his middle-way philosophy and try to outbid the Republicans at the polling places with personal appeals to the younger folk who grew up under Democratic administrations.

This theory has strong support from Southern Democrats who palpably want no more of Stevenson and his espousal of the civil rights program, which split four Dixie states off their column in last year's vote battle.

Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina made this crystal clear with an assertion that he would not go as a delegate to a Democratic convention which required an advance pledge of support for the nominee.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan carried the torch for the so-called "liberal" wing of the party. While he said he would be happy to have Stevenson for the nominee again, there were some signs that Williams regards himself as available.

The other Democratic governors didn't talk much publicly about the political situation, but their private expressed opinions indicated that they are not too optimistic about 1956.

All of this could change if the truce in Korea, which admittedly has boosted Eisenhower's popularity, goes sour before the 1956 nominating conventions.

But the general feeling among the Democratic governors seemed to be that if they can find a party candidate who satisfies the South without infuriating Northern Democrats they will come close to a winning combination.

Where they are going to find such a democrat, however, is a question that practically none was prepared to answer.

Sen. Symington (D-Mo) was mentioned by some as a possibility. Symington has the attraction to the Southerners of having been opposed by former President Truman when he ran for the senatorial nomination.

But the Missouri senator has the liability of not being able to shake off entirely his long-term connection with the Truman administration in a number of jobs.

Some of the smartest democrats think the man who will be their party nominee in 1956 has not yet lifted his head above the political horizon. They look back at the nomination of Woodrow Wilson in 1912 as an example of what they say could happen.

In this connection, some of them are pointing to a personable young governor, Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, as the sort of man whose sun might be coming up.

This is regarded in some quarters as somewhat far-fetched, since Clement obviously is wrestling with

STREET LIGHTS REPLACED—W. H. Copas, 1018 West Second, of the Missouri Public Service Co., is on top of a trouble shooter ladder replacing a bulb in one of the light standards on South Osage Friday night at midnight. Thirty feet in the air, the workman climbed each night the past week in replacing burned out bulbs in the downtown area which were "knocked-out" by the storm last Monday. More than 50 per cent of the lighting system on Lamine and Osage was out because of the electrical storm, while throughout the city it was estimated that at least 50 per cent of the street light system was out. The entire system was "lighted" Friday night. Delay in getting the downtown area fixed was due to the fact that workmen had to do their work after 10 o'clock at night when traffic was light and no cars were parked along the curb where the lights are placed. One Year Old Girl Strangles On Cord

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8 (P)—A one-year-old suburban Glendale girl strangled to death today when she became tangled around her throat in a bedroom of her home.

She was Mary Johannah Ashen-Brenner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ashen-Brenner Jr. Glendale police and firemen summoned to the house worked unsuccessfully for 45 minutes with an inhalator in an effort to revive the child.

The mother told police she put the baby in her crib to take a nap. About one hour later a maid found the child with the cord of the venetian blind wrapped around her neck and drawn tight.

The child's father was reported on route back to St. Louis from Camp McCoy, Wis., where he has been attending a summer training camp for National Guardsmen. She is survived by a twin brother and an older brother.

Meteors May Be Seen Again Now Several Nights

By Russell C. Maag

More meteors are in the offing currently with the Perseids visible as the most spectacular of the several meteor showers to be observed throughout the year. The Perseids seem to originate from a point within the constellation Perseus, named after the Greek god who slew the multi-headed Medusa while astride the winged horse Pegasus.

This constellation rises on the northeast horizon at about 11 p. m. during the month of August. The meteors should be visible from about 11 p. m. until at least 4 a. m. These meteors should be easily observed during the dates of maximum, Aug. 12 and 13 when rates of 50 to 85 per hour should be observed.

The moon will have already set on the above dates and time so that its light should not interfere with observations of these meteors. Perseid meteors are swift and leave long trains of light in their wake.

The brilliant planets which many people have reported seeing during the very early hours before sunrise are Jupiter and Venus is the brighter of the two and, viewed with the telescope, is in a crescent phase, presenting an image about as the moon is seen a few days past first quarter.

On Aug. 15, Mercury, the planet closest to the Sun, can be seen low in the eastern sky just before sunrise. The next few weeks after this date will show a distinct change in relative positions of these three planets and should prove interesting to watch, providing one is willing to take the time to get up and look at the early morning hour.

Pvt. Minx Killed While On Maneuvers

FT. RILEY, Kas., Aug. 8 (P)—Pvt. Norman Minx of Cadet, Mo., was accidentally killed last night while on a training problem with his infantry regiment at Ft. Riley, the public relations officer announced today.

Minx was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Minx of Route 1, Cadet.

The official announcement said Minx was on patrol with the G 85th Regiment when he was challenged by a sentry and failed to respond.

"As Pvt. Minx came closer to the sentry he either tripped or fell and the sentry accidentally discharged a blank round of ammunition, shooting Minx in the chest," the officer said.

Hospital authorities said Minx's chest was pierced and that he died shortly after admission to the post hospital.

Minx entered the service April 25 of this year.

Kain, while with the St. Louis Clothing Co., had much experience in handling a boys' department.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT
Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday Morning, August 9, 1953

Bernarr McFadden, Former Sedalian, Begins To Slow Up at 85, Acts Like a Man Only 55

By W. D. Agee
Bernarr Ben McFadden hits the headlines again — and that's what he likes best.

The noted physical culturist, health booster and publicist will be 85 Aug. 16.

The career of the one time Sedalian, who spent his boyhood in Sweet Springs and then came to Sedalia as a professional wrestling promoter, over a half century ago, has been a varied one in which at times he was high up in the millionaire class. At the time of his activities here, wrestling was largely a test of "beef" and brawn with stamina to go as far as endurance would permit.

Some matches were for a single fall, others two out of three.

During his promotion in Sedalia two well known St. Louis wrestlers, George Baptiste, and his brother, both formidable mat artists, came here at various times in matches with local aspirants to fame in the "grunt and groan" arena and some of the mat contests were of high calibre.

They were far different from the wrestling exhibitions of today and the rules were likewise at variance with those now followed.

In that day such mat contenders as Frank Gotch, many years world's champion, and "Farmer" Burns met in matches that might be termed rather furious. None of their matches were in Sedalia, however.

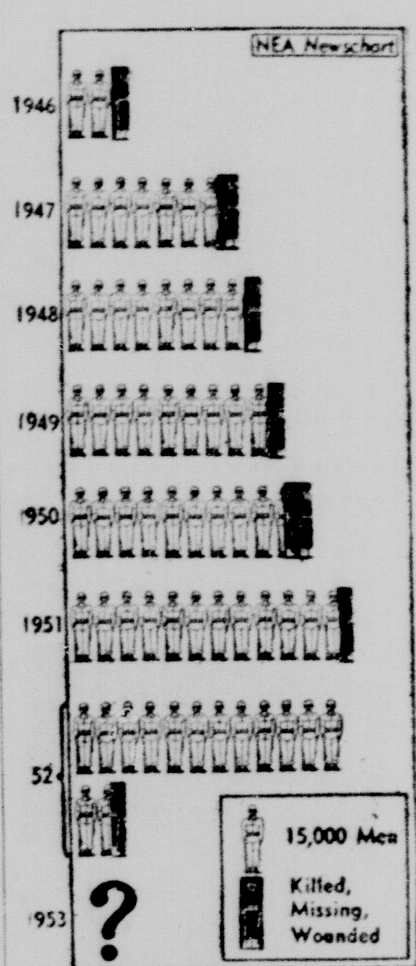

McFadden, after leaving Sedalia, was publisher of several magazines and, before taking up permanent abode in New York several years ago, acquired a magnificent and costly hotel at Miami, Fla., which, with its surroundings, was intended to be a health resort for restoring energy and upbuilding of lost strength and vigor.

Saul Pett, a feature writer for the Associated Press, after an interview with McFadden, wrote: "Let's face it. Bernarr McFadden is slowing up. He's beginning to feel like a man of 55."

He's not even sure he'll parachute out of a plane again to celebrate his eighty-fifth birthday, August 16. He may just stand on his head for a half hour or so. He's not even sure he will get married again.

Has "Several" Girls
"But you can't tell," said the famed apostle of good health, former ruler of one of the nation's biggest publishing empires and now a candidate for mayor of New York. "I haven't stopped looking. I have several girls I go out with occasionally but I haven't settled down to one as yet."

McFadden is now trying to get a legal separation from his third wife. His first two marriages, which ended in divorce, made him the father of nine and the grandfather of ten.

"It is a fact," he said, yanking hard at his long, gray - white hair, "I am slowing up a little physically. I can't lift a 100-pound weight over my head with one hand any more. All I want to do from now on is handle my body easily and gracefully."

He still sleeps on the floor of his small Park avenue apartment. Still fasts now and then for two or three days at a clip. Still raises his body with legs up and all the weight on his head and neck about fifty times a morning. Still stands on his head frequently. And he still walks four or five miles a day.

Just a Few Activities
Outside of that, he isn't doing much except running for mayor

as the "Honesty party" candidate, heading the non-profit MacFadden Health foundation and publishing "Physical Culture," the only magazine he retained after a series of magazine and newspaper publishing ventures ending in the early 1940s.

At 85, MacFadden is an imposing figure, with a lean, straight, muscular body, deep-set blue eyes, lined face, defiant mustache and commanding chin.

It is a little surprising to find him in a tiny office, remembering that he was once worth about 30 million dollars as the publisher of True Romances, Liberty, True Detective Mysteries, Master Detective, Photoplay, Love and Romance and various other magazines and newspapers.

He works at a cluttered desk, only an arm's length from any wall. The decor of the walls includes a nude blonde on a calendar, two posters billing a younger-looking MacFadden as "the world's greatest teacher in the science of health building," and a third titled "the death-dealing New Deal, do we want it continued?"

Keeping Scalp In Shape
It was a terribly hot, humid day but MacFadden appeared relaxed. He yanked at his hair and hummed frequently. The one operation is designed to keep his scalp young, he said. The other — humming — is "good for relieving nervous tension."

He said he might still bail out of a plane on his eighty-fifth birthday — he did on three previous birthdays — if his mayoral campaign leaves enough time.

"If I do, I want to be sure of landing in water," he said. "Last year, I landed on the ground in Paris — not the Seine — and was shaken up. Ho-de-ho, hum-de-hi, hi-hi-hi."

In his first radio campaign speech, MacFadden complained New York has been managed for too long by "old, or young fogies." It was time, he said, to throw out the "plundering politicians," reduce taxes, put business men in the saddle, improve the schools, accept home rule, "put an end to child gangsters," and reduce the subway load by the use of double-deck cars.

"We could lower the first floor to about six inches above tracks, allowing plenty of room for double decks," he explained.

MacFadden does not regard his age as a political handicap.

Just Passed Flying Test
"I'm in fine shape," he told me. "I just passed my physical for my pilot's license. I have a good chance of living to 100 even though both my parents died when I was eight. Ho-de-hum, hum-hum-hi."

Looking back at his long life, did he have any regrets?
"I've had a lot of fun," he said. "I don't feel I could have crowded in much more. No, there have been no great frustrations. Except maybe politics. I ran for the U. S. Senate about ten years ago in Florida and almost won the Democratic nomination."

"The fight for mayor will be my last stab at anything out of the ordinary. Other than politics, there isn't much else in life that I've wanted and didn't get. Ho-hum, he-he-he."

An early newspaper, the Observer in England, reported the Battle of Trafalgar without headlines, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

KIDDIES RIDES ARE FUN, top row center, and the children are enjoying the new rides this year, including the swans shown here. Located in the northwest area, across from the skating rink, the rides are new this year, and are making the section one of the busiest in the park.

"BOY THAT'S A GOOD WATERMELON" says a group of typical Sedalia people, top right, who were having a watermelon picnic at Liberty Park. People of Sedalia and the surrounding area are more and more making it a Sunday afternoon habit for a picnic at the park and a swim following it.

KEEPING A WATCH ON THINGS, lower left, while she drinks her milkshake at a night picnic at Liberty Park is little Carol Pugh, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Pugh, 1611 West Third.

A DIVE INTO THE DEEP AT NIGHT, lower left center, in the Liberty Park swimming pool is displayed by one of the more skilled divers, Alice Kissler, who frequents the pool regularly. Night swimming is becoming more of a habit with Sedalians, in an attempt to "beat the heat."

"I LIKE POPCORN", says little Charles Reed, 3, lower right, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reed, 1201 South Ohio. Charles was sitting on the counter of the Little League concession stand when this picture was taken.

LOOK AT THOSE EYES—Richard Prall, 4, bottom row, second from right, was caught while eating a hamburger at Liberty Park but seemed a little more interested in other things at the time. Standing behind him is his older brother, Dane, who is seven. They are both sons of Mrs. Leona Prall, route 3, Sedalia.

It Takes a Steady Hand and Knowledge of Stone—

Heynens Have Been Turning Out Monuments Since 'Grandpa' Started Business in 1879

By Peter Potter

Back in 1879, Charles Heynen and C. C. Clay started a monument business in Sedalia. A few years later, Heynen bought out his partner, and the resulting firm has been producing monuments and markers ever since. Charles Heynen has been dead for many years, but the wooden mallet with which he fashioned his sculptured monuments still rests on a shelf behind the desk of the present owner of the business, his son, Clyde.

Methods in the art of turning out gravestones have changed drastically with the years. Originally the stone carving had to be done by hand power, that is, by pounding the chisel with a wooden mallet. Consequently, marble was first used instead of granite because marble is softer. In those days, too, the fashion was to adorn monuments with fanciful carved figures of angels, clasped hands and the like. Alvin Heynen, Clyde's son and a salesman for his father's firm, says that a monument maker had to be a real sculptor then.

Things have changed since. The taste in monuments has turned to simpler design and inscriptions. One of "Grandpa" Heynen's workers was Charlie Barton, who retired five years ago at the age of 75. He says he had to learn to carve monuments four times to keep up with the changes.

He learned to hand-chisel marble first. Then the demand turned to granite because of its durability and appearance. That required different handling because it was much tougher to cut. The first granite used here came from Aberdeen, Scotland, and was called Scotch granite. Charlie says, "Grandpa Heynen used some of it in his shop."

In fact, he erected the longest piece of Scotch granite in the country at that time, in 1887, when he placed the Colonel Jaynes monument in the center of the old part of Crown Hill Cemetery. It stands 40 feet high, with a 27-foot high spire in one piece.

Next step was to learn to use compress - pneumatic tools, which put the old wooden mallets on the shelf, and the last step was to learn sandblasting. These two methods are still used today. Eighty-five per cent of the work done now is by sandblasting.

The stone used is shipped in from five different states, and it differs in color and texture according to its original locale. From Vermont comes the grey granite known as Rock of Ages granite. Another, lighter grey comes from Georgia. A dark red stone comes from Minnesota, as well as what is called a variegated stone that has lighter granules mixed in with the red. A brownish-red stone, called "mahogany," is shipped from South Dakota, and some red stone comes from Graniteville, Missouri. The shop also gets some red stone from Finland.

It comes already polished on its face and back from the quarries, where polishing can be done faster and cheaper than in the shop. The edges are left rough unless otherwise specified by the buyer. The stone is shipped mainly by rail.

At the shop are owner Clyde Heynen, who handles the paper work of the business now; his son, Alvin, 38, who handles sales and also does raised letter-carving on the monuments; Norman Bottcher, 36, who draws the designs, carves the rubber sheet patterns and does shape-carving of his designs; and Allen Hawkins, 29, a Marine veteran of Korea who is receiving on-the-job training as a sandblaster under the GI Bill.

Here's what happens after stone is shipped in from a quarry:

A buyer specifies what kind of lettering and design he wants on the color stone he has chosen. The face of the stone to be carved is then de-polished by sandblasting. The stone is moved into a small, shed-like room the walls of which are completely covered by rubber sheeting. It is placed so that it is facing a glass window in one wall. Below the window is a long, rectangular opening covered by loose hanging rubber strips. Through this opening Hawkins thrusts the nozzle of the sandblasting hose.

"Sandblasting" is a misleading term, because no sand is used at all. The grinding substance is actually powdered carborundum, shipped in from Niagara Falls, N. Y. It is forced through the hose in a jet stream of air kept under 90 to 100 pounds of pressure. Its cutting force is powerful. Wherever a rubber patch is removed from the inside wall of the blasting room, the wood is quickly worn away unless recovered. Despite the rubber strips across the hose opening, bits of stone can still be felt pricking the skin of the face by an observer standing outside. Hawkins wears goggles and a respirator while directing the hose.

Removing the polish leaves the stone face lighter. It is then covered with a rubber sheet on which Bottcher draws the design. He stencils the lines of his design with a sharp knife, thus exposing the stone along these lines. After 18 years of doing this kind of work, Bottcher can flip out almost a perfect circle with little wrist motion. It looks easy, but it's not.

Back to the blasting room goes the stone, bearing its rubber covering. Wherever the stone is exposed, the carborundum eats into it. Later on, the rubber sheet is peeled off, and the design is left in relief or raised form.

Bottcher may then use a miniature carborundum hose the diameter of a lead pencil to round the dips and curves of a leaf or a flower in his design. This is called shape-carving. It takes a steady hand.

If there are any raised letters to be carved, sandblasting is too inaccurate. Different sized and shaped pneumatic hand drills must be used to chip away the background stone. The pressure of air through the hose can also be controlled to change the depth and strength of the strokes.

Should one letter be cracked or misshaped, the whole monument or marker (a small monument) will be ruined and have to be discarded. What happens then? "Well," says

Alvin with a grin, "you're just not supposed to do it."

It's all a smooth system now, quite different from the day old Charlie Barton was sent out to Sweet Springs by Grandpa Heynen on an assignment to carve the Masonic symbol on a monument, as ordered by a lady customer who had visited the shop earlier. Unfortunately, she had not seen Charlie doing any carving and thought he was not qualified to do the job. She was horror-struck to find him daubing the monument in the cemetery with a mixture of mud and white lead. This was to show up the pencil marks that would not otherwise show on the polished stone surface.

The lady shrieked at Charlie to stop, and she used her voluminous skirts to wipe off the mud from the stone. Charlie told her he could do the work, and he added some more mud, which she immediately wiped off again. By this time her hands and skirt were a sticky mess, and her temper reached its peak. She gave Charlie a cuff on the cheek and dashed off to get the sheriff.

Charlie got right to work and didn't waste any time. Luckily, the sheriff wasn't in town at the moment, but the lady had a warrant sworn out against Charlie in the meantime. When the sheriff did appear, she hustled him into her carriage and set her horse galloping for the cemetery.

Just as she pulled up at the graveside, Charlie finished washing off the mud and revealed the design he had carved beneath it. The sheriff, who was himself a Mason, scrutinized the symbol carefully and then said to the lady, "Ma'am, there's nothing wrong with this job. He's done it just right."

The lady blinked in astonishment and then had a quick change of mind. She advanced toward Charlie to shake his hand in gratitude. He thought he was going to get another cuff on the cheek and backed away, but she convinced him she meant no harm. In fact, she invited him to be a guest at the family home for the evening and was ready to send a message to Grandpa Heynen that Charlie wouldn't be home immediately, but Charlie declined the invitation and returned to Sedalia. He heaved a sigh of relief at having escaped a cell by so narrow a squeak. Had the sheriff been anything other than a Mason, Charlie might have served a term in the Sweet Springs jailhouse.

LIBERTY #—Fire broke out in a three-story grain elevator early today on the Desert Gold turkey farm three miles south of Liberty.

First reports said the elevator, which housed an estimated $25,000 worth of feed and machinery valued at about $200,000, was destroyed.

Fire departments from Liberty and Gasland fought the blaze. Origin was not determined.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT
Sedalia, Missouri, Sunday Morning, August 9, 1958

Donald O'Connor and his talking mule co-star, "Francis", return to the screen in the fourth hilarious adventure of the pair, and all-new, "Francis Covers the Big Town." Starting today at the Fox Theatre, the new comedy also features Nancy Guild, Yvette Dugay and Gene Lockhart.

Stewart Granger is impressed by Jean Simmons' visions of England's future maritime greatness in this scene from "Young Bess." MGM's romantic drama of the fiery girl who was to become the first Queen Elizabeth. Also starred in this spectacular Technicolor production are Deborah Kerr and Charles Laughton. The picture opens today at the UPTOWN Theatre and plays through Tuesday. On the same program — Hollywood's most lovable gal, Ma Kettle, in the laughingest picture of the year, "Fast Company," co-starring Howard Keel.

from a sidewalk, headed east, and the Pontiac, which was driven by William Leo Curtis, 1311 East 11th, collided with the rear of the pickup. The impact knocked the pickup from the highway into a fence row.

There was an estimated 350 dollars damage to the front end of the Pontiac and about 40 dollars damage to the front end and rear bumper of the pickup.

The Pontiac was towed to the Cal. Rodgers Pontiac Co. and the pickup was towed to the owner's residence.

The accident was investigated by State Trooper Earl Gregory.

Sedalia Had a Humane Society; It Was Active In Years Gone By

By Hazel Lang

Sedalia used to have a Humane Society according to Miss Stella Crandall, 203 West Broadway. It was organized, she said, by the late Ernest W. Holmes and her mother was a member. The dues were a dollar.

Miss Crandall was just a young girl then and her mother thought she should take over her work in the Humane Society. To help the cause a tea was to be given. She offered to make the ground ham sandwiches, but it seemed she just couldn't keep in the sandwiches. Mr. Holmes kept coming back for more sandwiches and she found they were being sold three for a dime. That was more than she could take — and so the last of the sandwiches were bought up by Mrs. Jaynes, who said they were the most delicious sandwiches she had ever tasted.

What happened to the Humane Society, which went along for a number of years, Miss Crandall doesn't know, but she is still interested in what happens to dogs and cats. She and her family always loved pets and she recalls many incidents concerning animals, especially cats.

One day when she was a little girl her older brother and sister, Arthur and Emma, had lost their little cat. It had somehow strayed away and they asked their mother if they could go look for it. She said it would be all right if they didn't go too far. Well, they went quite a distance and then, they thought they would go a bit farther to the Edwards' grocery store. Into the store they went and Mr. Edwards was busy with customers when the three little youngsters asked if he had seen their cat. He hadn't, but he told them they could go in the back of the store where there was a mother cat with some kittens and they could help themselves to cats.

This was exactly what they did. They each picked out a kitten and took it on home with them.

It was a very surprised mother who saw her three children standing there not with the one strayed cat, but each with a little kitten and of course they had to keep care of because none of the youngsters wanted to part with her or his own particular one.

Another time Arthur came in with a tiny kitten that had been out in the rain.

"Please, Mama," he asked, "Can't we keep this poor little kitten?" And Mama, who loved cats, too, said they would keep it, and they did keep it the entire 18 years of its life.

The kitten was black and was named Bill. After about two or three weeks, when Bill had become a real pet in the family, a small Negro boy who knew the Crandall family came by to see how the kitten was getting along. Then he made a confession: "I brought him over from Nigger town," he said. "And left him here." He had found him and knew where he would have a good home.

Another time a small kitten showed up and the children wanted to keep it, but this time the mother said: "If it catches a mouse we will keep it."

A few minutes later the Negro woman who was working at the Crandall home called Mrs. Crandall: "Well, I guess it stays — it has earned a home." There was the little kitten coming along with a mouse in its mouth.

One of the things the entire Crandall family always got most enjoyment from was taking care of and watching pets — and they liked to watch the birds, too.

Always there was food and water for the birds and they were not particular what kind of birds, either. They liked sparrows, too, and Miss Crandall, the last of her family, still throws out crumbs and keeps water for them. She remembers one time when a robin was trying to get the strings off the grape vines that had been tied to the arbor and was having a terrible time. She got some muslin, tore off several short strips and put it over the clothingline. The robin would get it and fly up to the nest it was building — then she put on just for fun, a very long strip, and wondered what it would do. The robin took that strip, too, and flew way up in the tree, the long white strip of material floating behind it. Later she saw the nest. It had woven the long strip in and let the ends it couldn't quite get in hang over the nest like draperies.

Miss Crandall is still interested in what happens to animals. She hopes there will be a humane society and a place to take care of the poor little strays, but she was anxious for people to know that Sedalia was not always without a place for animals. It did have a humane society at one time.

Many other Sedalians are interested, too, they have offered to give money if an organization is started and some have offered to take care of the animals if a place and food are provided. So, perhaps, one of these days the little strays will have a place to go when they are not wanted by families in

Sedalian, Fortuna Man Injured In Auto Accident

A two-car accident occurred at 5:30 p.m. Friday about nine miles east of Sedalia and about 112 feet east of the Morgan County line on U. S. Highway 50, in which George Henry Worthley, Florence, the driver of one of the cars, a 1950 Chevrolet pickup, was knocked unconscious, receiving bruises about the body and a bump on the back of the head, and Miss Beatrice Pinkepank, a passenger in the other auto, a 1949 Pontiac convertible, received a laceration of the right knee. Both of the injured were treated at the Bothwell Hospital and released.

The collision took place as Worthley drove onto the highway town — somewhere to be taken besides being thrown out somewhere in a sack. One Sedalia woman believes that of all cruel people was the one who put a small kitten and its dead mother in a sack and threw it out.

A couple of little boys found the sack, looked in it and brought the little kitten to the woman they thought would take care of it, and she did — she took the little kitten in.

PINT-SIZE POOL PICKETS—Neighborhood children in Detroit, Mich., want to wade in the Water Works Park pool and start picketing to dramatize their desires. The park was closed for "security reasons" after the Korean war started. Now that the war has ended, a city official has promised to take the matter up with City Council.

"The wife makes me wear it while she's on vacation—says I'd break too many dishes!"

OVERLOADED—Looks worse than it was. No one was killed when this 45,000 pound tractor toppled onto a car parked along an Allentown, Pa., curb. The air brakes on the tractor failed, and in order to avoid hitting six other cars, the driver, Gilbert McElrath, made a sharp turn and toppled his load.

FISH GO ON "RECORD"—Fish noise went on record for the first time in Germany's history when this sound technician brought his tape recorder to the Aquarium in West Berlin's zoo. All he got for his efforts was a lot of grinding sounds.

WEEDS WON'T EVEN GROW—This was once a so-called "improved" pasture in Marshall, Mo., but now it's only slim pickings for the cattle shown above. The field was fertilized and seeded according to the latest methods, but it was to no avail. It has been so dry that even weeds will not grow. As a result cattle are losing weight and the market in the area is disintegrating.

RED TERROR—The eyes of six-year-old Eva Kapus reflect the terror of the story being told by her father, Dr. Geza Kapus, after his escape from Communist Hungary to Vienna. A lawyer, he had been deported to a small village. Then secret police held him responsible for all minor violations happening there. Determined to escape, he and his family fled across the barbed-wire Austro-Hungarian border. He and his daughter made it, but his wife was critically injured by a border guard's hand grenade.

Only Certain Insurance Pays Damages

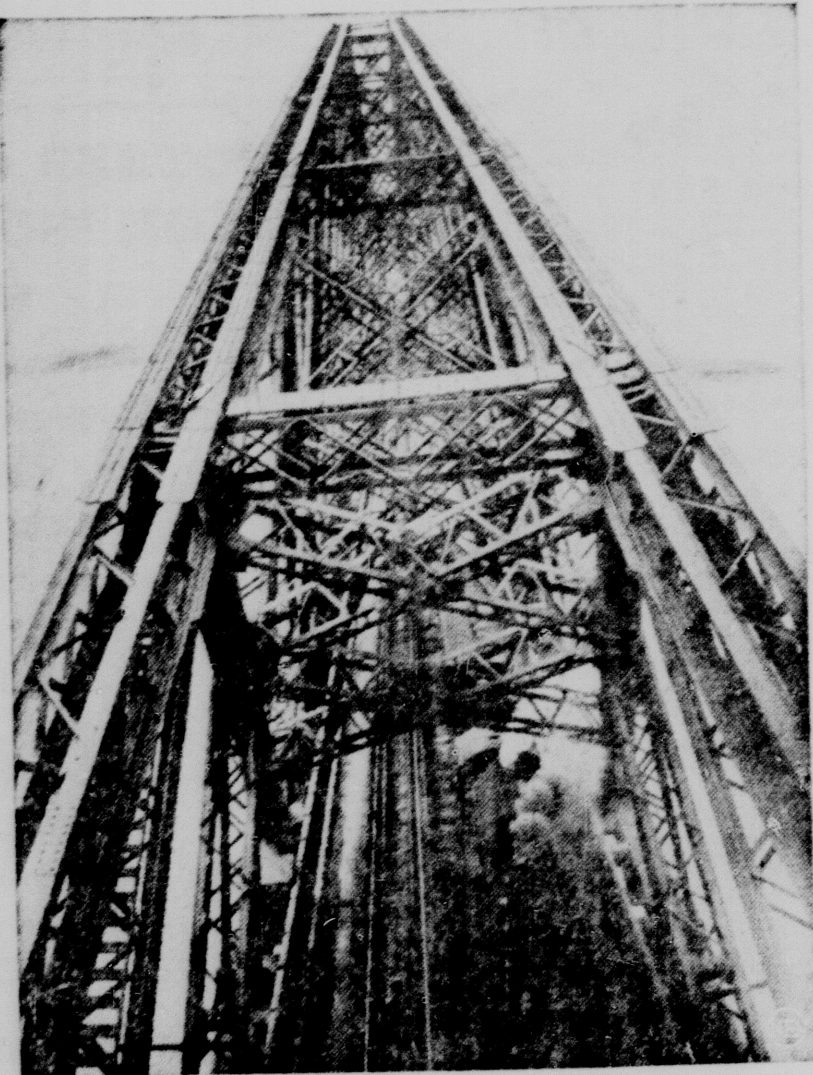

JEFFERSON CITY.—Director of Revenue M. E. Morris reminded Missouri motorists today that only certain forms of insurance are acceptable as proof of ability to pay damage claims in the event of an accident under the State's new Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law which becomes effective Aug. 29.

"I would like first to make it abundantly clear, as I have attempted to do in the past," Director Morris said, "that motorists will not be required to carry insurance under the new law. It is not a compulsory insurance law. It demands only that motor vehicle owners and operators shall be prepared to pay for the damage they have caused in traffic accidents, up to $12,000. They may do this by carrying insurance or by depositing security with the Department of Revenue."

"The experience of most of the other 43 states that have adopted similar laws, however, indicates that the great majority of motorists will elect to protect themselves before they have an accident, by taking out insurance. The same experience shows that a great many motorists have suffered unnecessary inconvenience and even hardship because they did not understand that the law could accept only those forms of insurance which cover damage claims resulting from motor vehicle accidents."

"Some motorists in other states, for instance, thought their fire and theft insurance protected them against the penalties of their financial responsibility law. Others believed their collision insurance was enough. Still others thought personal accidents and even life insurance would do the trick. Unfortunately, none of them would or could. They insured their own against personal injury to himself or damage to his own property, but they did not cover the damage he did to others, which is the goal of a safety responsibility law."

"The great majority of Missouri motorists, if they elect to protect their motoring privilege through insurance, should be sure they have what is known as automobile liability insurance or a combination policy that includes it. This is the kind that is written for the owners of private passenger cars. The law says that it shall be accepted automatically as proof of ability to meet damage claims resulting from an accident, providing it was in effect at the time of the accident and was sufficient to meet claims up to $12,000.

The law also says that the Director of Revenue may accept any other form of liability insurance which, in his judgment, will cover damage claims resulting from the reported accident. The average motorist, however, should not concern himself about this form of insurance because it principally applies to business or industrial owners. In case of doubt, the surest way of settling the question is to ask your insurance company, agent or broker if your policy protects you against the security provisions of the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law.

"This all adds up, of course, to public protection, which is the purpose of the new law. It was written to compel motorists to pay for

Sedalia's Social Messenger Listed City's Eligible Males

We have tried to give all kinds of features in the Democrat-Capital, to give you a push. If a girl wanted to get married she was aided by features in the Democrat-Capital, to give you a push. If a girl wanted to get married she was aided by features in the Democrat-Capital, to give you a push.

A little item was about the marriage of a Sedalia man which seemed to be a surprise to the town. After the marriage was announced this little paragraph was inserted: "Some years ago we published a list of Sedalia's eligibles and nearly all of them have remained in single blessedness until the last few months and we are truly glad they have concluded to take the fatal step while we were still here to tell about it."

Well—it might have taken "The Social Messenger" a little while to get the job done, but no doubt the list of eligibles helped the girls considerably — they knew who to go after, and they apparently got them after a few years. But then the Social Messenger had a motto: "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star", and it seems that if you did that the Messenger was willing

Maybe you have already surmised it by this time, but "The Social Messenger" was published by women, a woman editor and a woman manager. It looks like they stopped too soon, there are still a few men on that list who never married—but you can't say that the girls on the Messenger didn't
